That disturbs both day and night. His pet peeve is a "gospel wagon" that "makes more noise of a less pleasing kind than a callopie" and makes sinners out of those who have to listen to the noise faster than a platoon of preachers can save them.

IT'S ALL OVER

Our compositors are overworked on publication day and the day before, for which reason the editor can't get his stuff into type unless he furnishes it Monday, hence the good advice to follow necessarily lacks partiality.

In New Jersey a court has ruled that a golfer who yells "Fore!" is not responsible for any injury his ball may inflict thereafter. That court doesn't know much about golf etiquette.

By the time this is read the election will be over and the results known. Our advice is, whoever has won, take it and like it. Things won't be nearly so bad as we were told before election they would be if the other fellow got the job.

"Four forms of sales tax are now popular in this country," says a news feature story. Some people are awfully careless in their choice of adjectives—Eugene Register-Guard.

Majorities rule in the good old United States. The voters often make mistakes, as well as those they elect to office, but at least they vote what they wish, and that is something.

A physician says that he hasn't dressed a single skull that has been cracked by a beer bottle for a year. Maybe skulls are getting harder—Eugene News.

CHOICE IN NOISE. A short time ago a voice of protest was raised against the banty rooster that crows lustily at early hours.

Brielle, N. J., residents are mystified by the actions of its chief of police who disappeared, reappeared and disappeared again. Is it because he appeared at all that they are mystified?

BETTER HOMES IN AMERICA. Cottage Grove, Ore., Nov. 5.—(To the Editor.)—It is said that, like the rest of us, Uncle Sam has budget trouble.

Well, we told you so, or you told us so.

Instead, each unit would be on a living basis with opportunities for little luxuries as each person desired to go out after them; there would be adequate protection for youth and age and each individual from childhood would learn how to live within his income, yet be happy and an asset to the community well being.

There are many phases of a basis for domestic management depending upon the place of the home, the nature of the work for income, the number employed, young dependents, old dependents and other considerations. But that there must be some system of a kind that early shows the child his responsibility to himself to handle money, and reduces to a minimum the nerve strain of meeting the agreed-upon family necessities, no one will question. Thereby each enjoys his own privilege and again has opportunity to provide little extras by his own successful business management. Also a great deal more time is to be had in freedom for cultural development and in enjoying life generally. While we as a better homes committee have long advocated a care and repair program for the home, I feel that this need must be seen, felt and saved for by the family group to attain the highest amount of anticipation and enjoyment from it, rather than to use the plan now advocated and offered of borrowing and rebuilding. There are emergency cases, however, where this plan would be advisable.

WHERE THE THRIFTY THRIVE

HOW MUCH FOR YOUR EYES. Eyestrain is a very real danger. Few of us realize that we pay dearly for every hour we strain our eyes. The tragedy is that we seldom know that we ARE mis-using our eyes. Attempting to read, work or study in poor or glaring light is the cause of most eyestrain. Often the penalty for eyestrain is not paid until later years. Then it is too late. The two or three pennies a day saved on your light bill isn't worth the risk of impaired vision.
