A STUDY IN BOYS.

Those visiting the course of the Cottage Grove Golf club after a 24-hour and on Saturdays have been puzzled to find a number of school boys working with zest improving the course. There is something of a human interest story in connection therewith and possibly a pointer for other golf clubs.

These boys want to become golfers, but were without funds that they could use to pay dues and buy clubs. They are earning both by doing work that beautifies the course, and already visitors have been astonished by the way thickets and brush have been cleared away and burned. This activity on the part of the boys came about this way:

The course has no caretaker during winter months and three boys saw no harm in using the course during hours when no one else was playing. It occurred to the club president that these boys might like to work for their dues and be able to use the course at any time. They would be better off on the course than on the streets. They were tickled with the opportunity, but the only club three boys had to use was a No. 5 iron. The boys said they would be glad to do additional work for clubs. The president got members to donate discarded clubs and other equipment. The boys worked from two to eight hours for a club or bag, according to its value.

The idea went over so well that other boys were attracted. There was plenty of work for all, but the problem was to furnish clubs. The president has a considerable acquaintance over the state, so he wrote friends telling what he was doing and asking for their discarded equipment. Every golfer from outside the city who visited the golf club president was told the same story. Equipment has been coming from all parts of the state. Laurelwood and the Eugene Country club at Eugene have contributed. Equipment will be secured for the entire 20 boys, and probably for others on the waiting list.

The boys are benefitting by being taken from the streets, the golf club is being benefitted by having work done without cost that it could not otherwise have done, and before the end of spring the fir-bordered course will be a show place. In addition the boys now working for dues are likely to be paying members in years to come. Some of them may be in tournament play before the season is over.

The golf club president hardly knows how he thought of this way of helping both the boys and his organization. We wonder whether we are not overlooking many opportunities like this to help boys and girls at little expense to us, but with great good both to the young folk and to us.

These have been difficult times for young folk, as well as for elders. Young folk, naturally, do not understand the problems of their elders. Possibly the elders have not understood the problems of the young folk that they have criticized. Possibly if we looked for more opportunities to give them a lift they would do more things for which to be complimented. At any rate, this is something worth thinking about.

SOCIETY AT GEARHART.

Society at Gearhart must be something different from that to which we back in the sticks are accustomed. At least, so we should judge from an account in the Seaside Signal, which goes meticulously into detail.

The account starts: "The advent of new arrivals in the community led to a charming social affair on Friday." The "advent" is the time a thing happens, or the time immediately preceding a happening, so the good society women of Gearhart seem to have adopted the pretty custom of meeting arrivals at the city gates and carrying them off to social functions. That is a spirit that should be encouraged. We do not pay enough attention to strangers arriving at our gates.

Further on in the account of this function we learn that "a COLLECTED was served from a table centered in rare Amaryllidaceous blooms and Mrs. Blank's lovely brass candelabrum, without which no party in Gearhart is complete." (The caps used are ours.) We have heard of collections being taken, but this is the first time we have heard of one being served. Again the Gearhart matrons are original. Those rare Amaryllidaceous blooms probably would have been narcissus and daffodils in Cottage Grove, but anyway centering the table in them and the lovely brass candelabrum is something different. That lovely candelabrum is likely not to grace many more social functions if many more tables are centered in it.

Description of gowns was interesting. We quote from the Signal: "Pouring at the table (the one centered in the flowers and candelabrum) were Messlames B— in chic black costume; Mrs. M— in silver gray tailor suit, Mrs. T— in brown silk, Mrs. W— in black and white crepe with rhinestone decoration, Mrs. B— in new spring hat of chip straw."

We should say that the Gearhart matrons are unique in their methods and that "a good time must have been had by all."

With 10,000 persons asking Governor Martin for jobs because they voted for him, the general may have a different idea of how he came to be elected than he had the day the vote was counted.

The Townsend Weekly is one of the few papers published outside of Lane county that gave a correct account of why Howard Merriam, legislator from this county, was recalled.

Fish is said to be brain food, and there are a few who came so near going daffy waiting for the season to open that we hope they get enough for large meals.

A course on what to do with your spare time has been added by a Boston school, so we may look forward to a younger generation of golfers.

A man in North Dakota has been arrested because he had 40 live skunks in his possession. That should have insured him against arrest.

THE 1935 Ford V-8 brings you the most important Ford development since the introduction of the Ford V-8 engine—the new Full-floating Springbase with Comfort Zone Seating.

Wherever you sit in this new Ford V-8, you ride centerpoised—between the springs. Springs are longer, more flexible, and the springbase increased to 123 inches. The result is "front seat riding comfort" even for back seat passengers.

New riding ease in the 1935 Ford V-8 is matched by new driving ease. Control, steering, parking are easier. Starting and shifting have been made almost effortless. Braking requires surprisingly little foot pressure—yet is surer, smoother.

Here is a car that is styled to the minute—built for the years. Welded all-steel body, engine and chassis improvements make it more durable than ever. Safety glass throughout at no extra cost.

Look to this new Ford V-8 for everything you could want in a modern car. See it at your nearest Ford dealer's now.
