LAWSON ROBERTSON remembers a weird and ghostly happening at a motor cycle race in 1912.

"The night before the race," he narrated, "the racers met at Brighton Beach, N. Y. They had come from all parts of the country. There was a circuit of motor cycle race-tracks—one in Buffalo, one in Brooklyn, St. Louis and Newark. The men met at Brighton Beach for a jolly get-together dinner before their race in Newark.

"Before the dinner Arthur Chappell lit a match, gave it to John Albright to light his cigarette, then to Eddie Hasha to light his and then rnsed the same match to his own cigarette.

"He jumped from his chair so abruptly that he startled every one around him.

"I lit three cigarettes on one match," he exclaimed. "I'd give anything not to have done that."

"During the race something went wrong with Albright's motor cycle and Albright, Hasha and six spectators were killed."
