

Tremendous Trifles

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ORDERS ARE ORDERS

SIR FERDINAND GORGES was a colonial promoter and his greedy eyes looked across the sea to the New world. He would send a colony there.

The earl of Warwick agreed to be Sir Ferdinand's partner. Both gentlemen had heard rumors of a group in Leyden who were eager to be sent into America. This group had already purchased and named the Speedwell and were also buying the large three-masted vessel named the Mayflower. The two titled schemers thought that here was a ready-made colony for them.

Sir Ferdinand placed his own captain on the Mayflower. The man was one Mr. Jones, an ex-convict. His patron had rescued him from jail and he was ready to take orders. The Mayflower left London late in July 10, 1620, to go to Virginia—or so their passengers thought. The ex-convict had other orders from his master. Twice the Speedwell sprang a leak and twice put back for repairs. Members of her crew later confessed that they had deliberately caused the damage because they knew the vessel was headed for New England.

Finally, in September, the Mayflower sailed. After a perilous trip land was sighted, but it was not the Virginia coast that the passengers' patrons had promised. The Pilgrim leaders insisted that Captain Jones take them southward, but he refused and headed for the dangerous waters of Cape Cod. Sir Ferdinand's orders were orders! © Western Newspaper Union.

Lay Forgetfulness to Mice
The reason that a cat forgets its master is stated to be because cats eat mice, which are eminently the cause for forgetfulness. In Russia, Jewish boys are not allowed to stroke a cat lest they lose their powers of memory. This prohibition does not extend to girls, however.

Lovable Enigmas

These puzzles we have married! How disturbingly efficient they are. Patiently they sit across the dinner table from us and listen to our evening complaints — short-handed at the office, chief chanky, customer spoiled golf date, stenographer late, letters misfiled — women have all the best of it! Then they smile riddles.

If you could see the woman in the morning after you leave for the office. Children to bundle off to school, meals to plan, marketing to do, laundry to send and buttons to put on, tears to mend, dozens of trips to the front and back doors, lunch, squabbles to settle, cut finger to bandage.

At night, she meets you in a chic little gown you never saw before. Junior struts new shoes. There are new towels in the bathroom. There is an unfamiliar and delicious dish to tempt your appetite.

Where does she find time to be company purchasing agent, vice president in charge of cooking, general manager of sewing, teaching and all the rest?

The advertising columns of this paper are her greatest ally. Here are new ways, better ways, better things — and at savings she gloats about, but seldom mentions.

By Famous People

By IRVING BERLIN
Famous Composer.

ONLY the person who suffers from insomnia knows the rages and terrors of the still night hours before the dawn of day.

Through the night lulling tunes and haunting melodies come to Irving Berlin, the famous composer, but sleep eludes him.

"Once during a hot summer night," Mr. Berlin related, "I was staying at a small Broadway hotel during the production of one of my first musical comedies.

"Tired out from the work of rehearsal, I could have fallen into a light sleep, but I was disturbed by the snoring of the man in the next room. I paced the floor. The snoring grew louder and wilder. It was uncanny. At four o'clock it stopped, and I fell asleep for a few minutes, only to be awakened again by the regularity of the harsh notes. I slept by fits and starts.

"At six o'clock I remember I was awake.

"Frantically, I walked into the hall. The snoring man's door was open. I pushed aside the ventilating screen. An empty white bottle caught my eye. I picked it up and, with one blow, brought it down with revenge upon the man's head. It shattered into hundred of pieces. Blood trickled down the man's face. This was horrible.

"The next thing I knew a hand was grasping my arm. I could feel it, but could not see it. Was it the dead man's ghost? I tried hard to visualize it—was it the hand of a spirit detective?

"I reached up to push the hand away.

"Wake up," roared a bellboy who was tugging at my arm. "You left a call for seven o'clock. Hope you had a nice night's sleep." He added, jauntily. "The man in the next room has complained that he dreamed he heard the noise of someone walking back and forth, back and forth, all night. Hope you didn't hear anything queer."

Snake Venom a Mystery

The question why snake venom is poisonous is still unanswered by science. It has been found the venom is composed of mucus and debris from membrane cells, carbon, sulphur, oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen, some fatty matter and salts, but the mixture shows no trace of poison when analyzed by chemists. Venom varies in color with the kind of snake. The cobra's is white, the water moccasin's bright orange, that of the Texas rattler resembles melted butter, and the fer de lance has a greenish venom.

Origin of Tennis "Love"

The term "love" employed in scoring tennis is said to be derived from the French phrase "l'oeuf," meaning "the egg."
