 "Is a diplomat supposed to tell the truth?"
 "Oh, yes. But he is often permitted to take his time about discovering it."

Soap Plant Gives Washing Suds
 The soap plant of Mexico and Colorado, when its roots are placed in water, forms suds like soap which may be used in washing.

LUMBER OUTLOOK IS UP IN AIR, SAYS DIGEST

With Higher Wages Being Paid
 No Drop in Prices
 Is Expected.

"The general outlook today has so many cross currents and is so filled with uncertainties that it is a hard matter to get an idea as to what the future holds," says Crow's Lumber Digest.

"To use the expression of a prominent northwest lumberman, it is not only necessary today to size up each market separately but also each individual item. Every one is of the opinion that there is a considerable amount of business being held back, business that must eventually be placed, but buyers are waiting to pulse the results of the increased production of fir. As a market factor this is entirely unknown in its force. It can be very important and it is also possible that it is greatly overestimated. Concerns that had orders placed before the strike at prices which are considerably below the present level are becoming insistent upon getting shipment and as this stock is moved it to some extent relieves the necessity of replacements which had been contemplated. That is particularly true of cargo business. Another possible explanation of lighter placements is the normal seasonal lull to be expected during August.

"A careful investigation of the status of fir mill order files shows that there is really only one class of business the mills are actually needing today and some are in a comfortable position on that, which is cutting. The price peak which was reached prior to the resumption of sawing by the mills which were closed by the strike has been leveled off, as was to be expected. However, there are many who already feel that the very small scaling down of cutting prices has already struck bottom. One thing is certain, the variation is not great. The mills have under the new wage scales a much higher production cost than before the strike and presuming that prices are to be governed by costs it is unlikely they can or will go much lower, that being especially true of the larger operations, nearly all of which are now paying the same wage scales and are nearer on an equality than they have been in several years. It is true that some of the small operators in outlying districts who have but limited facilities and turn out lumber of mediocre quality are paying less wages and consequently can go lower on some items, but the total production of such plants is only trivial and has no far-reaching effect on the general market.

"From every section of the middle west and eastern fir consuming territories come reports that the prospects are good for a heavy consumption of lumber this fall. Fortunately, the brightest outlook is said to be in the country and small towns where a maximum of lumber is always used in any kind of residential or outbuilding work. In the cities, where it is necessary to take out building permits, it is possible to make a fairly close estimate on the exact amount of work that is in the offing. In the outlying sections such estimates are not possible and therefore no definite figures are to be had. The drive which the government has been making to encourage modernization and building in general has been and still is very extensive. The ease with which money can be obtained for such work and the sound arguments in favor of modernization are unquestionably creating a swing in that direction which is becoming contagious.

"Roosevelt's administration is going to literally force into circulation during the next 12 months close to five billion dollars and it stands to reason that some of it is going to flow into the channels of the lumber market."

WILL THEY?

Unless these New Deal Democrats Stop pulling bureaus out of hats I fear that soon we'll have to get A new and larger alphabet.

Now what this country needs today Is less and less of N.R.A. As well as N.K. and E.T.C. But more and more of C.O.D.

For in the Bye and Bye Somebody has to P.A.Y. For all the jack the U.S.A. Is handing out to us today.

Our star of hope is growing dim We'll soon be on the B.U.M. We'll struggle, starve and break our neck To meet our future T.A.X.

Unless I make an N.G. guess It's time to sound an S.O.S. And stop the flood of I.O.U.'s, And I mean stop it P.D.Q.

So I beseech you F.D.R. Don't stretch the alphabet too far My shirt is gone—now Mister please Don't take away by B.V.D.'s.
