"WHEN WE SAY POWER, WE MEAN POWER"
 Says Washington Logging Operator

It takes plenty of power and stamina to handle the loads my 1936 Ford V-8 truck is carrying every day. In the logging business when we say power, we mean power, too, because logging roads aren't by any stretch of the imagination smooth, level concrete highways. But steep grades, rough country and tough weather never bothers us—we keep right on "hauling them out."
 Along with performance, we get real economical operation with this Ford unit, and when you're working a truck day in and day out that's a big factor to consider.
 I'm sold on Ford trucks 100%—they do the job and do it right.
 Sincerely yours,
 Signed J. A. NAAS,
 Route 1, Monroe, Wash.
