Repeal Drivers' License Fee and Modify Gas Tax

Announcement comes from Salem that Earl Snell, Secretary of State, favors the elimination of the $1.00 fee in connection with the renewal of operators' licenses. He also proposes having the renewals come only once in three years instead of every two years as now provided. Snell also suggests the elimination of the affidavit feature in connection with claims for gasoline tax refund which would mean that it would not be necessary to require the notarial seals. Mr. Snell also suggests the elimination of the 50 cent fee now required under the law in filing application for permit to claim refund. He pointed out that the gas tax law provides for sufficient penalty in connection with fraudulent claims, therefore, he saw no reason for opposing repeal of the requirement calling for notary seals.

Ask Internal Revenue Collector

Postmaster N. J. Nelson Jr. reports the receipt of the following communication from W. W. Howes, first assistant postmaster general, relative to questions raised about the Social Security Act:

"Numerous requests are being received in the Department from postmasters for information concerning Internal Revenue Forms SS-1, 2, 2-A, 3, and 940, in order that they in turn may give general information to the public covering the completion of such forms and the collection of the tax.

In the circular letter of December 1, 1936, postmasters were instructed to refer all such inquiries to the nearest collector of internal revenue. There is not anything about the cooperation given by the Post Office Department to the Social Security Board in the enumeration of employees under title II of the Social Security Act that fits postal employees for answering questions concerning the functions covered by these forms and postmasters should comply with the instructions and direct all inquiries to the collector of internal revenue."

Irish Legends Attract

Visitors to Tara Hall

Only a space between two banks in a green field marks the site of the banqueting hall of Tara, once the capital of Irish kings and one of the most famous places in ancient Ireland.

The hall was truly immense, but, strange to say, some of the documents of early times minimized rather than exaggerated its size. An old Irish poem, for example, states that it was 700 feet long, whereas actual measurements show that it was about 760, declares a writer in the Chicago Daily News.

There is little to see at Tara, but many visitors come to it each year for the memories and legends it evokes of ancient Ireland. Here are the rath of Concubhar and the mound of Naisi, central figures in the tragedy of Deirdre, which has formed the theme for works by Yeats, Synge and "AE," three of the country's most famous authors of modern times.

Tara also has memories of St. Patrick, for it was there that he defied the Druid priests by lighting the Paschal fire in 432 A. D. History says that the Druids warned the king that if the fire was not put out the man who had lighted it would rule all Ireland. In reply St. Patrick wrought miracles, legend has it, overcame the Druids and finally won permission to preach Christianity in the land. The king, however, refused to be converted, preferring on his death to be buried sword in hand looking out toward the land of enemies he had hated all his life.

Python Has Legs, Wiry

Jaws for Bolting Food

Even a snake charmer might overlook the fact that a python has a pair of legs. The limbs are small, states W. H. Shippen, Jr. in the Washington Star, and only appear externally on large pythons and boas, behind the center of their bodies.

Yet the claw-like legs are clear proof, zoologists say, that the python in some remote period of its evolution, ran on all fours instead of crawling.

This Indian python is one of the most beautiful of snakes. He is about 10 feet long, weighs 70 pounds or so, and may grow to twice this length before he attains his full development.

The python is popular with lady snake charmers of the circus. These snakes are readily tamed and make amiable pets. Quite a few charmers declare their pets form a personal attachment for them.

Others say this is not affection so much as preference for an expert rather than an inept handler.

The regal python sometimes grows to a length of 30 feet, and is capable of killing a man, a large pig or antelope. The python and the boa kill by crushing their victims in flexible, muscular coils. Elastic hinges on their jaws, and arrangement of their inward-curving teeth enable them to swallow large mammals whole.

Obsidians Plan Week's Outing in Bohemia District

The Obsidians, winter recreational club of Eugene and neighboring cities, are planning a week's outing, February 17-22, in the Bohemia district for club members and invited guests.

The snow covered peaks of the Bohemia group, in all their winter splendor, will afford an ideal sports ground for skiing and tobogganing which constitute the major activities for the Obsidians. The committee in charge is Glen Sims, Bill McCracken and Virgil Hicks. Those who desire to register for the trip may do so at Hendershott's store in Eugene.

If you are thinking about learning to ski here are a few helpful pointers from Miss Belle Burkholder entitled: "Learning to Ski With the Obsidians"

"I've always wondered how you learn to ski. Now I've found out, but I haven't learned yet. Far from it. But I made a heroic attempt, the occasion being the annual New Year's party of the Obsidians, Eugene hiking club."

Speaking as a spectator Miss Burkholder describes as interesting and amusing some of the accidents which happen to even expert skiers and continues:

"At first I laughed but after trying to learn to ski, all skiers have my deepest sympathy. I practiced by myself on a little hill at the back so none could witness my falls. However, my roommate spied me. She often turned around and laughed! Mostly I fell backwards on my right hip. But once one foot glided rapidly forward, the other just as rapidly backward, and I hit the ground between the two. Believe it or not, I had to unfasten the skis before I could arise. There was no other solution to the tangle, about as graceful and skillful as a cow on stilts. I've concluded it would take ten years constant practice to make a "skier", the occasion, I'd make a perfect flight, then what a thrill! Just like flying with a perfect landing! The crippled and bruised, I'd like to try it again, it's such sport!"

White Resigns As Manager of Safeway Store

Walter E. White, for some time past manager of the local Safeway store, resigned his position with that firm January 8 and requested that his resignation become effective as soon as he could be relieved. The ill health of his parents made it necessary for Mr. White to take this step as they own a large ranch and a mine just north of Yuma, Ariz., the management of which will be taken over by him.

Mr. White left yesterday for Detroit, Mich., where he will take delivery of a new Pontiac he recently purchased, drive from there to Kansas City where he has some business to look after and then go to Yuma. He expects to return here for Mrs. White and the children within two weeks.

F. J. Anderson from a Eugene Safeway store has taken over, temporarily, the management of the local store until a permanent manager is appointed.
