CENTRAL NEWS.

Several new residences of the most modern type have recently been completed in Safety Town, the pasteboard town the second grade students have built for the practice of safety rules. The houses are complete with curtains, paint and in some cases back yards with children playing with dogs. The buildings are made of pasteboard, butcher paper, shoe boxes and similar material.

Many buildings in the business section could be identified as Beidler's feed store, the city hall, the red and white store, Penney's, the Arcade, Gray Goose cafe, post office, railroad and station, school house and playshed and residences lining several streets. The buildings so closely resemble local business houses as to make one feel that the whole city is a miniature of Cottage Grove. The street intersections are equipped with stop and go signs and the railroad has the proper safety signs to warn people. The activity aided the students in learning about safety on streets, on highways, in water, in the home, with fire and at play.

Richard Chambers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Chambers, transferred to a California school this week. Richard was a fifth grade student.

Max and Jack Hoover, students in the third and second grade, moved to California this week.
