Young Awaits Word

Cal M. Young, county commissioner, and director of the Oregon Trail pioneer parade, declared Monday that he was anxious to hear from Cottage Grove people in regard to their entries for the parade. He has already written the chamber of commerce. E. V. McCoy, Mosby creek, promises to bring his big black bull to Eugene for the parade. The bull weighs 1600 pounds and will be hitched to a two-wheel cart.

Country Roads Don't Rate With Highway Commission

The long-awaited answer of the state highway commission to Lane county's request that it be allowed to pay only half the amount of gas tax money to the commission this year, using the extra money to repair county roads, came last week, but left the county court in as much of a quandary as before. The commission's proposal was that the county pay $200,000 of its remaining $264,263.79 debt to the commission now and the additional $64,263.79 will be forgotten. The county is in no position to pay $200,000, or everything would be all right. On June 24, there was a general fund balance of $102,274.58 in the county treasury but expenses totaling $15,000 per month must still come out of this fund. More money will come into this fund in the next six months, but there is no way to predict how much.

While the county court is figuring and worrying, Lane county's roads are going to pieces and unless that $42,000 is secured and repairs started, more damage will result.

Revested Grant Land Bill Before Congress

A bill which will effect 2,000,000 acres of revested grant lands in Western Oregon was handed to congress by the house public lands committee recently and reported to have been introduced unanimously and had been reported favorably. Some of the provisions of the bill are: (1) a sustained-yield management or an annual timber harvest of 500 mill board feet, market conditions permitting; (2) reclassification of land and restoration to homestead entry as land more suitable for farming than reforestation; (3) fifty per cent of the revenue goes to the counties, 25 per cent after the retirement of county taxes accruing to June 30, 1938, to the treasury to liquidate a deficit of several millions in the land grant fund, later reverting to the counties and 25 per cent to the interior department for administration costs. The lands affected by this measure are known as the Oregon and California land grants.

4-H Broadcast July Third

A Fourth of July program will be featured on the monthly 4-H club national broadcast over KEX from 9:30 to 10:30 July 3. The theme of the program will be "New Frontiers for Rural Young People," and patriotic music will be played by the United States marine band. H. W. Gilbertson, U. S. department of agriculture, will be the speaker.

Marriage licenses were issued to the following Cottage Grove residents during the past week: Jack A. Grider and Ethel S. Cline; Harold Hulme and Kathleen Siegel; Charles W. Wood and Susie Lillian Carille.

At the annual meeting Saturday, the county non-high school board authorized payment of all tuition bills that have come in so far. Jess Harper was elected chairman of the board and G. W. McFarland, vice chairman.

Road Work

Three road crews are now busy patching oil roads in the county. The ban on log hauling was removed Friday and with the coming of clear weather repairs are expected to progress rapidly. Roads are being resurfaced in the Marcola district and the county is considering building a bridge across the McKenzie river near the Good-pasture place.

Tax Turnovers

Tax turnovers were again high for this past week. The total turnover on the current roll was $13,614.37, while on delinquent taxes from 1927 to 1936 the amount was $9,008.28. From this amount Cottage Grove gets $22.56 and school district 45 gets $393.86. Other amounts go for roads, bonded indebtedness, etc.

The second quarter of state tax totalling $12,366.98 was sent to Salem June 23.

Portland Invites
You to See the
Navy July 16-29

Portland, Ore.—(Special).—Portland invites the entire west to the mobilization in Portland harbor July 16 to 29 of the United States fleet. Thirty-six warships with 15,000 officers and men and a squadron of 50 giant planes will move into the harbor for two weeks liberty immediately following the war maneuvers in the Pacific.

Portland is arranging a gala celebration. The city will take on a carnival spirit with streets decorated, special outdoor shows, dances and entertainment throughout the period and with the largest naval parade ever attempted on the Pacific coast. The ships, including 11 heavy cruisers, will be anchored at the docks in the heart of the city and will be open for public inspection. The navy plans various demonstrations including air circus events and night illumination by the warships.

Lorane Re-elects
Members of Board

Lorane.—(Special).—Election of high school board of directors was held Monday night, resulting in the reelection of Martin Foster, for a five-year term, Ralph Lynch for a three-year term and W. T. Moore for two years. Mr. Lynch and Mr. Moore had previously been appointed to fill vacancies. Harold Foster is clerk.

The board announced teachers for the coming year as follows: Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Godard, both re-elected; Miss Alice Gerot, Eugene. Salaries will be increased above last year.

Wood Duck Has Topknot

The wood duck may be identified by his topknot. The only other duck with this characteristic is a hooded merganser, which is sometimes not very desirable from the table standpoint.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD
 Questions on Lighting

Here is bad and good lighting. At the left the light strikes almost directly on the front of the subject. Shadow contrasts are too harsh and the young lady's "crowning glory" is almost lost in the dark background. Notice the difference in the other picture where the light strikes from the side.

TAKING proper exposure for granted, right lighting, whether it be daylight or artificial, is the principal quality which distinguishes the photographic work of art from the ordinary haphazard snapshot. How much attention do we, as amateurs, really pay to how light illuminates our subject when we aim our cameras?

Suppose we are photographing a person, do we take the pains to avoid harsh front lighting, which makes our subject squint and casts deep shadows into eyes and from the nose. This usually happens when the sun is high and directly strikes the front of the subject. Especially in the case of a close-up the shadows that delineate the features are likely to be unpleasantly harsh.

Do we seek to discover the light angles that are most pleasing? Usually light coming from the side or a bit from behind the subject makes a better picture.

Do we observe the tone of the principal object of interest? If the object is dark do we note whether it is in such deep shadow that it is in danger of merging with the background when the negative is developed and the print made?

Do we notice whether a light colored subject is in a full glare of light without a dark background behind it to set it off? Sometimes a background that seems to be dark may not prove effective because of unobserved light reflections such as from the surface of water.

Some of the most famous photographers stress the intelligent use of light to an almost unbelievable degree. When working with artificial light, they may use thousands of watts on such a seemingly easily photographed subject as a basket of eggs. They carefully study the effects of variations in light intensity, how they affect sharpness of shadow outline, shadow density, shadow gradations. They experiment with these effects, shifting camera, lights, or the subject itself, and decreasing or increasing the volume of illumination. They want to show you a picture of that basket of eggs that is realistic enough to tempt you to reach your hand into the basket and pick one up, and by controlling the lighting, they succeed in doing just about that very thing.

We, too, as amateurs, can immensely improve the quality of our pictures if we will but study and consider light effects, whether from the light of the sun or from home photo lamps.

Obviously, there can be no rigid rules for selecting or arranging light effects, considering the infinite variety of picture subjects, often quite differently affected by similar light conditions. Getting the right effects depends upon how much sense of the artistic we possess, plus experience sizing up the picture chance.

Put there is one general rule, and that is to seek contrast in the high-lights and shadows that compose the outline, substance and background of the principal object of interest. At least we can avoid that cardinal sin of black and white photography—"flat" lighting.

Agricultural Men
Speak at Chamber

County Agricultural Agent O. S. Fletcher and Arthur King, of Oregon State college at Corvallis, were guest speakers at the chamber of commerce meeting Tuesday. Both men discussed the probable future of agriculture in the Cottage Grove area. Mr. King from the standpoint of irrigation. The speakers had been secured by Loren Schroeder chairman of the entertainment committee. Both men looked for a gradual development of agriculture in this section, but offered one suggestion for the immediate future—the encouragement of seeding of cut-over lands, with the development of both the beef cattle and sheep industry in consequence.

Ray Stitt Injured
While Hunting

Fairview.—(Special).—Ray Stitt, who has been at the Otho Van Schoiaek home for some time, met with a quite serious accident Monday while out hunting digger squirrels with a .22 rifle on the Van Schoiaek place. He stumbled and the gun was discharged, the bullet passing through his foot. His call for help was heard by Charles Teel who rushed to his rescue. With the help of other members of the family he was carried to the Teel home and then taken to a physician in Cottage Grove. He will be unable to be out for some time.

Rev. Eugene C. Hickman Drowned.

Rev. Eugene C. Hickman, a former pastor in the Oregon Methodist conference and one time president of the now defunct Kimball School of Theology at Salem, was drowned Saturday in the Mississippi river near Winona, Minn., according to Associated Press reports received in Portland. Rev. Hickman, superintendent of the Winona district, in company with two other ministers, was fishing when their boat was sucked back into a roller gate of the Minnieiska dam. The body of one victim had been found but searchers continued to look for the bodies of Rev. Hickman and the third member of the party.

Rev. Hickman was a personal friend of Sam Mackin's, the two having attended Hamline university the same years. He had visited at the Mackin home and occupied the Methodist church pulpit here on occasions.
