

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

HOW UNUSUAL!

A picture snapped from inside the house and through a window often proves to be a fascinating bit of work.

IT'S almost unbelievable but it is true that many amateur snapshooters have the notion that it is only the unusual that is worthwhile snapping. When they travel, a camera is taken along to get pictures of new scenes and new faces but they use it around their homes only on special occasions.

"But," you may say, "I've already made good snaps around the house. What else is there to shoot?"

Nobody can answer that question for you directly. But it's dollars to doughnuts that there are dozens of untouched picture possibilities. And all of them interesting as the ones already in your album.

The secret of finding them is simply a matter of keeping your eyes open. Get the habit of looking at things—everything—as though you had never seen them before. It's amazing the way this habit will sharpen your interest—now dulled by sheer familiarity—in even the most commonplace things.

Some of the finest pieces of photographic art have been results of appreciative eyes in the heads of stay-at-homes. The pattern of sun and shade on the front steps, the fascinating interplay of roof lines, tree portraits—are typical of pictures that may be made at home—unusual pictures of usual subjects.

Don't be afraid of doing things differently. It's a tonic to tackle old subjects from new points of view. If, to get a shot that appeals to you, you have to upset the "laws" of safe-and-sane snapshooting, don't hesitate. If your eye enjoys the scene, whatever it is, the chances are that your camera will enjoy it too.

With such helps as the inexpensive photo-flood bulbs (for which efficient reflectors are available) you can do your snapshooting indoors as well as out. Present-day cameras, films and lights give you unlimited scope for your snapshooting. Today almost any picture is possible—and at any time.

Of all words of praise for the snapshooter, the sweetest are these, spoken by a friend:—"Well, would you look at that! I've seen that spot every day for the last fifteen years and I never dreamed it had the makings of a picture like this."

Maybe you've heard these words already! Congratulations!

Have a Light Check of Your Home

The sight-meter is a device for measuring light in terms of seeing power. With it, it is easy to determine whether or not your home is lighted correctly. We will gladly check your home for you if you will let us.

Do your children love—or hate—to go to school? Do they get good—or poor—report cards? Good or poor light at home has a lot to do with it! Eyestrain has held back many a child in school. And, of course, you will not learn of eyestrain from the child. There are few, if any, pain warnings. In fact, there is no sure way to be certain that your children and your family are getting sufficient light except by having one of this company's lighting experts make a free analysis of your home lighting, using the famous "Light Meter." Why not have this test made at once? It places you under no obligation.
