GOLD IS WHERE YOU FIND IT
With George Brent and Olivia de Havilland as its stars, "Gold Is Where You Find It", a thrilling melodrama of California in the 70's will open at the Arcade May 6. It is in technicolor.

It deals with a phase of gold-seeking hitherto untouched by the movies, hydraulic mining, whereby powerful streams of water ripped away hillsides and from the debris the miners sifted their metal; but this debris overflowed the land of the wheat-growers and orchardists which caused a prolonged and deadly conflict. The fight continued over a number of years and nearly split California in two.

The film was made on the actual locale of the ancient war. You will see the old West as it used to be.

Turtles of the Galapagos
Turtles of the Galapagos islands lay white, spherical eggs, which are a little larger than hens' eggs, in the sand or any convenient hole, a dozen or more at a time. If dogs and pigs do not destroy the eggs, buzzards often attack the young tortoises. If these escape destruction, the older animals are generally killed by man for their flesh and for the clear oil obtained from their fat. Those which survive all these perils are apt to live for centuries, barring other accidents, asking nothing else than to pursue their peaceful ways.

Feelers Aid Insects
Many insects have feelers which help them almost as our arms help us, and some have special tools for plunging and boring and digging for food. The mosquito, for instance, with its sharp dagger-like beak, has little difficulty in puncturing our skins for a luscious, gory drink.

DATE SET FOR ANNUAL CEMETERY CLEAN-UP

The time approaches when we must again begin work on the annual cemetery cleanup. We do this each year in order to have the cemetery in shape for Memorial day, and to show our respect and love to those of our families who have passed on before us. As a token, too, that their memories are yet enshrined in our hearts, and while they no longer live on this planet, they are yet with us in spirit.

In order to do this work, we must rely upon the individual lot owners, for we have no permanent funds but must collect each year through voluntary subscription what we can and with this amount do the best possible job. May we be successful in 1938, so that we may be proud of our cemetery and of our community effort which makes it possible each year to beautify the last resting places of our loved ones.

We wish to appeal to those who have loose cattle in this neighborhood that they keep them away from the cemetery so that this sacred ground will not be profaned, as at the present, by their ugly tracks, until the Masonic and Odd Fellow lodges can arrange to build the new fence. Thank you.
