

"Snow White" Animated Film Feature, Ranks With World's Ace Attractions

Grimm's Noted Tale in Sumptuous Technicolor Production by Walt Disney Receives the Acclaim of a Masterpiece.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," Walt Disney's gorgeously produced musical feature-length animated picture in Technicolor, was launched with a notable world-premiere at the Carthay Circle Theatre in Los Angeles shortly before last Christmas, followed thereafter with a record-breaking run at the New York's world-famed Radio City Music Hall, and has become the sensation of motion picture entertainment. It has taken its place in the front ranks of important film attractions.

In production for three years, and costing a million and a half dollars, "Snow White" is expected to establish a standard for future animated features in much the same manner that "The Birth of a Nation" influenced the epic cycle that followed.

The Disney picture is a drastic departure from previous technique in the animated field, in that living, credible beings have been created in the persons of Snow White, the seven dwarfs, the queen, the prince and other characters in the famous Grimm's phantasy. In addition, the art treatment departs radically from cartoon expression. An illusion of depth has been added through the use of the multiplane camera, an invention perfected by Disney technicians. This new camera treatment makes three-dimensional figures out of characters drawn in a two-dimensional medium.

Added interest attaches to the eight musical numbers in the feature, the outstanding one being "Hi-Lo," a marching song sung by the dwarfs.

The story relates the adventure of a beautiful young scullery maid whose youth and charm arouse the envy of a wicked queen, who plots in various ways to get rid of her forever. How the Queen nearly succeeds after seeking out Snow White in the latter's refuge among seven kindly dwarfs, and how the little heroine is finally rescued by her Prince Charming is pictured with exquisite artistry and humor combined.
