The meek may inherit the earth, but the tax collector will be there.

Hitler is promising a car for every garage. Over here our difficulty is to find enough garages for all the cars.

Fans are furnished Japanese troops in China, but the chinks are keeping them so busy they don't get a chance to use them.

....
A strange six-foot monster has been reported on a New England coast. May be it's some woman in an old-fashioned bathing suit.

....
A California young man drove over a cliff while day-dreaming about his girl. He must have gotten past the point where he married her.

....
A couple just married in San Francisco used a marriage license which they had been holding since 1928. Their ten years of consideration accomplished nothing.

....
If the fellows running for office this year had been elected four years ago, the country would have been saved from every disagreeable thing which we have been disenchanted.

....
A Hindu who walks on hot coals without blistering his feet, gives entire credit to faith in God. Republicans are hoping the fellow has faith they are going to win this fall.

....
An insurance statistician says intelligent persons live longer than dumb ones. Possibly it merely seems longer to them because they take so much time to worry about things the dumb ones don't know.

....
A hundred thousand dollars of gasoline tax money is used annually in advertising the highways of the air conditioned state. No doubt those who contribute the money feel it is being well spent, but just imagine the number of chamber of commerce secretaries it would take working overtime to get the same amount from the same persons for the same purpose by direct solicitation.

A FARMER COMES TO TOWN.

O. Dickey drove into town Friday morning in a vehicle which reminded one of the buckboard of early Nebraska days, behind as fine a team of horses, weighing 1250 pounds each, as this writer has seen in many days. In his wagon were some stalks of Golden Bantam corn, grown on the Frank Garoutte place at Thornton Corners, the roots of which rested against the dashboard with the tops extending out behind the wagon between three or four feet and you should have seen the size of those ears of corn. It takes a lot of cultivating to raise corn like that and a lot of care to keep horses in the fine condition that spanking span showed they were in by their every movement.
