Arkansas Traveler to Be at Arcade Sunday

A moving and human picture of small town America, seldom before equaled on the screen, is given in the new Bob Burns film, "The Arkansas Traveler," which will be presented at the Arcade theatre for three days starting Sunday, November 27.

For his portrayal of that colorful American figure, the fighting editor of the country newspaper, Burns deserves great credit. He is also always the homespun countryman—when he rides the rails with his brother hobo, edits a local newspaper to help a lady in distress, promotes a romance and cleans up politics in the fact of powerful opposition. "The Arkansas Traveler" will be of particular interest to residents of small cities because of its setting in a small community.
