

Farm Economists Foresee A Brighter Income for 1939

Oregon farm income for 1939, as that of the country as a whole, may be moderately larger than in 1938 if present trends continue as analyzed by agricultural economists. This is the word brought back from Washington, D. C., by L. R. Breithaupt, extension agricultural economist at Oregon State college, who represented the extension service at the annual agricultural outlook conference.

A brief summary of the agricultural outlook for Oregon is contained in the current issue of "Agricultural Situation and Outlook" just published and distributed to various extension offices throughout the state. More detailed discussion of the outlook as applied to individual enterprises will be included in later issues throughout the year as usual.

The more favorable outlook for farm income in Oregon is dependent upon maintenance of normal gross volume farm production and a strengthening of consumer purchasing power as is predicted by the bureau of agricultural economics. Farm production expenses are expected to average about the same as in 1938.

The outlook is relatively more favorable for farm families producing crops that reach the consumer without long storage, except where such quickly used crops are increased greatly in volume or where they have experienced prices in 1938 raised by government action.

While in Washington Professor Breithaupt acted for the college in proceedings before the Federal Communications commission on behalf of the state owned radio station, KOAC.

He reports that an application has been filed by the college, through counsel, asking the commission to grant a rehearing of the case of the Salt River Valley Broadcasting company which is seeking to use the same wavelength used by KOAC.

It is believed that such use would result in serious impairment of KOAC's service, so the college is asking an opportunity to present evidence before the commission acts on the examiner's report which was favorable to the request of the Arizona station, KOY.

Approximately 1500 parcels of Lane county land were ordered foreclosed and directed to be sold by Judge G. F. Skipworth, as the result of a document filed at the office of the county clerk in Eugene Saturday.

District Attorney L. L. Ray filed the document, a sheriff's certificate of sale of real property on tax foreclosure, the first notice of this sort to be filed at the court house under the three-year tax delinquency law.

The long list of properties, having been previously published as delinquent, will be sold by the sheriff in the near future. Tax liens have been ordered foreclosed against each tract and parcel of land. Each certificate of registration covering the various properties will be canceled, and a new certificate for Lane county will be issued.
