Football is dead! Long live basketball.

Practice for interclass basketball started Monday under coach Don Moore. The first league game will be played with Eugene January 10 here.

The squad will be cut down to 30 players the first of next week. This group will be kept until about Christmas, then cut down to about 18 or 20.

J. R. Jewell, dean of education at the University of Oregon, was the guest speaker at an assembly sponsored by the Boy's Federation last Wednesday. His topic was "Thankful for Forty Years."

The dean brought out that he was thankful for living in Oregon instead of in a country where it gets down to 40 degrees below zero. He was also thankful for the modern schools of today instead of the schoolhouse he had to attend, the floor of which was made of yellow clay. He was gratified that he had average intelligence instead of being like an idiot he once saw.

The most miserable thing he knew of was to live with some people he knew, the worst being himself. The second most miserable was the thought that as a person grows older he doesn't change, but becomes more like himself. "You can't teach an old dog new tricks". If he'd known he would have to live with a fellow like himself for 40 years he would have done something about it long ago.

The dean concluded that everyone should do in life that thing which he would rather do than play.

Preceding the deans talk, Mr. Batterson led the assembly in a number of songs. "Prayer of Thanksgiving" was sung by the Boy's Octet.

The girls' league did their part to make others thankful on Thanksgiving by sending out seven baskets of foodstuffs. These baskets each contained meat, canned fruit, vegetables, butter, bread, potatoes, oranges, and apples. The students brought contributions and the merchants were asked to help cooperate. The girls wish to let the following merchants know that they appreciate their cooperation: Ocum-paugh's Grocery, Umphrey and Mackin, Better Bakery, Brown's Drug Store, Kent's Market, Irish and Swartz, Smith and Short, Irish-McBroom Meat Market, Safeway Stores, C. G. Creamery, C. G. Fruit Market, Gates Meat Market, Golden Rule Grocery.

A new type of place card was featured at the Girls' League and Boys' Federation council dinner given Tuesday, November 22. Cartoons which were supposed to represent the various guests were put at each place. Mr. Ferrin had a cartoon in which an absent-minded professor was addressing a class. He was minus his trousers. Mr. Batterson, who had just become a father, had a card on which a man was expectantly waiting in a maternity ward. He was saying to a pretty nurse, "Whose little baby are you?" Mr. Frazer gave an eloquent speech, after which he presented Mr. Batterson with a lovely safety pin all decked out with ribbons. After dinner the boys and girls separated into their respective groups and discussed future business for their organizations. The federation will sponsor a drive on courtesy about the school. Cartoons and slides on correct manners will be used.

Nancy Anlauf, sophomore, returned to school Monday after three weeks' illness.

Helen Harrington, junior, withdrew from school Monday, November 21.
