Business Activity Spurts With Ship Building Program

Labor To Be Chief Benefactor In New Construction Program

WASHINGTON—America's giant heavy industries today were headed toward bigger business and employment of millions of the nation's idle as the government sped orders and plans for its huge rearmament program.

A survey conducted by a news service showed:

1. Naval and maritime commission shipbuilding programs will jam private and government shipyards for 10 years, with the heavy industries providing virtually all of the materials.

2. Airplane factories, now behind in orders for 1200 military and naval aircraft, will be called upon to double their capacity and output within the next 12 months.

3. Automobile factories, tractor manufacturers, and gun-making establishments are receiving and will be given additional orders for delivery of military equipment in the largest quantities in the nation's history.

4. Labor, through increased payrolls, will receive the greatest share of the expenditures, and with its increased consumption of food, clothing and other non-durable goods will aid the agricultural industry.

While the rearmament program for the army is yet uncompleted, the navy and maritime commission's programs are pouring $250,000,000 into shipbuilding alone this year and the outlay will aggregate $400,000,000 next year.

Established the Jury System

Johan Printz, a giant of a man, efficient organizer but slavedriver, became governor of New Sweden. He was governor for 10 years, leaving just before the Dutch moved in and asserted their own claims to the Delaware region. When the Swedes settled, five Indian villages occupied the area that now comprises Philadelphia. Under Printz, Tinicum island became the first seat of government of the region that was to become Pennsylvania, 29 years before the arrival of William Penn. Printz was first to establish the jury system here as we know it.

ARTHRITIS

I suffered for five years from Arthritis, with several large, open sores on my body, which are now all healed since taking Casey's Compound. I was practically an invalid. Now I do my own housework and do not use crutch or cane any more, and cannot recommend your Compound too highly to Arthritis sufferers.—Louise Capper, Portland, Ore., for sale by leading druggists.

Oregon Youths Get Chance for Ohio Trip

At least a dozen Oregon boys and girls, making up five different judging and demonstration teams, will be granted expense-free trips to compete at the World Poultry Congress at Cleveland, Ohio, next July, according to arrangements made by the Oregon World Poultry Congress committee.

Three 4-H club teams and two Future Farmers of America teams have been authorized by the state committee to represent Oregon officially in the youth section of the show from July 28 to August 7. The 4-H clubbers will have a poultry judging team of three members, a demonstration team on the production phase and a demonstration team on the consumption phase of two members each, according to H. C. Seymour, state 4-H club leader and the west's representative on the national youth committee.

The Future Farmers will be represented by a three-man judging team and a two-man production demonstration team, Earl Cooley, state director of vocational agriculture and chairman of the state youth committee, has announced.

Elimination contests among the 4-H clubbers will be held in every county, with the county winners competing during the annual 4-H summer school here next June for the Cleveland trip. Seymour says. A similar plan for selection of the two F. F. A. teams will be carried out. The state congress committee has guaranteed half of the expenses for the youngsters, with their local communities or counties expecting to raise the remainder of the necessary funds.

Several communities and service clubs have expressed interest in sending one outstanding boy or girl or more to the congress in recognition of their accomplishment. State committeemen are encouraging this as a means of enabling more deserving youths to join the Oregon delegation and have the opportunity of seeing the greatest poultry show ever held in the world.

The Oregon youth delegation to the congress may also play in important part in the state's poultry exhibit, if tentative plans go through. The boys and girls may assist with distribution of advertising matter and other minor duties in the exposition hall.

Traffic Accidents Are Fewer In 1938

With only two months of the current year yet to be accounted for, Oregon counties generally have shown vast improvement over last year's traffic accident experience, Secretary of State Earl Snell reported this week. Not a single county has suffered increases in all three departments—accidents, injuries and deaths—while nine counties have registered decreases all along the line.

Lane county took fourth place among the state's seven Group II counties on the basis of improvement in its traffic record over the first 10 months of 1937. Last month this county took fourth place in its group.

Following is the order in which the counties in this group ranked: Coos, Lincoln, Tillamook, Lane, Jackson, Hood River and Linn.

Deschutes county maintained an unbroken record of 10 months' leadership in Group III, while Clackamas and Coos counties tightened their grip on the top spots in Groups I and II.

The list of Oregon's traffic death-free counties for 1938 was narrowed to four during October when Jefferson county suffered its first fatality since November, 1936. Other counties with clean slates are Wheeler, Crook, Harney and Morrow.
