Crop Insurance Adjustments to Be in Corvallis

State and county agricultural committees of Oregon are scheduled to receive special training in Corvallis on February 27 and 28 on the work of adjusting crop losses of growers who are insured under the Federal Crop Insurance corporation, marking the final phase of the 1939 crop insurance program in this state.

Arrangements for the adjustment and payment of losses are going forward at the same time that applications are being written for spring wheat. Closing date for making application for spring wheat crop insurance is March 1.

The state and county AAA committees will be in full charge of the insurance adjustment in Oregon, the state office at Corvallis has been notified, and farmers who believe that their wheat has suffered loss sufficient to wardant a claim will report the condition to the county committee. The insured crop will then be examined by an inspector working under the county committee's direction.

Actual settlement of approved claims will be made by branch offices of the corporation, and growers may receive indemnity payments in cash or in the form of warehouse receipts for actual grain.

The 664 Oregon farmers now holding crop insurance policies are guaranteed a certain number of bushels of wheat, and in case some unavoidable hazard such as drought, hail or winter-kill reduces the crop below the insured amount, the grower is eligible for an indemnity sufficient to bring his production up to the insured amount.

In case of total loss, proof of loss of the entire insured amount will be submitted by the grower to obtain settlement.

Lynx Hollow

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Davenport and daughter of Cottage Grove were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Taylor Sunday.

Those attending the B league basketball tournament in Eugene were Charles Peck, Archie Moore and Miss Della Moore. Charles Peck played on the Walker team.

Central School Notes

Valentine Day was observed in some way in every room Tuesday afternoon of last week. Each room had a beautiful valentine box in which valentines had been accumulating for some time. Besides the distribution of the valentines most of the rooms had programs and parties at the close of the day.

• • •

A group of boys, representing the local Boy Scouts, gave a demonstration of the work and activities of their organization Thursday afternoon for pupils of the fifth and sixth grades.

• • •

The second annual dental clinic was held for the pupils of Central school Monday. The two local dentists and Miss Moore, health nurse, conducted the clinic.

• • •

Friday afternoon the children of Miss Jones' sixth grade room entertained their mothers with a program featuring prominent February birthdays.

• • •

A special visiting day for parents and friends of Miss Johnston's room was held Wednesday. The regular daily school program was carried out with the exception of tea and cookies being served at 2:00 p. m. to visitors.

Several interesting school activities are under way. The two most elaborate are the Dutch and Holland project being conducted by the pupils of the third grade and Life in the Far North by the fourth grade.

An important part of the Dutch activity has been the construction of a windmill six feet in diameter, eight feet high with a Dutch home scene nside of the mill. It is indeed an impressive sight with its huge arms and gay-colored exterior. The whole room has in so far as possible been given a Dutch settitng. This activity had not only supplemented the regular school subjects, but it has vitalized and made real life in The Netherlands. In the reading and language classes poems and stories of the Dutch have been read and dramatized. Booklets of Dutch stories with illustrations have been made. For music Dutch folk songs and dances have been learned. In fact every school class has been enriched by this activity.

The fourth grade activity, Life in the Far North," has created much enthusiasm and stimulated learning through experiencing. A large child-constructed igloo — the winter home of the Eskimo— occupies one corner of the room. In contrast in the opposite corner is the tupik, or summer home of the Eskimo. Miniature dog sleds, snow shoes, reindeer sleds, weapons and tools of the natives have been made by the pupils and are to be seen all about the room. Another interesting feature is the museum in the back of the room containing objects of interest from the north. On the walls and black boards are large freizes depicting other phases of life in the far north country. This activity has furnished many practical lessons in arithmetic, language, spelling, geography, music and art and at the same time motivated and vitalized the work.

Other activities being conducted are farm projects in both first grade rooms; an Indian activity in the second grade; a project involving Life in the Middle Ages in Mr. Robbins' sixth grade room.

Special visiting days are being planned for early in March when parents and friends will be invited to see the results of our work.

James Miller of the Cosmos mine, has gone to Seattle on business. The Cosmos has been undergoing development work until the severe weather started after the first of the year.

Ray Nelson, Robert Nelson and Walter Graham made a ski trip to the Sweepstakes mine and report plenty of snow in the higher mountains. The Sharps Creek road is blocked just below Glenwood by a large windfall, laying lengthwise of the road.

Ren Sanford, owner of the Log Cabin claim below Mineral, is improving his cabin and getting ready for development work in the spring.

Recent high water in Sharps Creek and consequent erosion of gravel bars has exposed some likely looking placer ground and it is reported that these deposits will be explored with a view to working them in a small way by sluice boxes. Considerable "dust" has been recovered in this way before, although the gold is fine and light and hard to save with the conventional methods.

THREE SMALLPOX CASES.

Three smallpox cases have appeared at Eugene according to reports and school pupils who had not been vaccinated in the past seven years were ordered suspended for a period of two weeks. Suspension of the non-vaccinated pupils was taken as a precautionary measure. The smallpox there thus far has been described as an incipient epidemic and little fear is held that the epidemic will become general.
