Personal Glimpse Of 'Jack' Garner By Old Friend

A rare, intimate glimpse of John Nance Garner, the man, is contained in a column entitled "Perspective," written in News Week magazine by Editor Raymond Moley, former assistant secretary of State under President Roosevelt.

"It's true that Mr. Garner is picturesque," he says. "But he's picturesque only because his method of life, which is simple and natural, contrasts so weirdly with the sham living that goes on in Washington. So far as I can see, he's a man who lives his life as he wants to live it. If he were the manager of a ranch or the president of a bank or the publisher of a newspaper with no possible political ends to serve by 'quaintness,' he would still do just about as he does.

"He doesn't live simply because he wants to get votes. He lives that way because he is a simple man. He refuses to go out to dinners because he wants to go to bed early and get up early. He smokes cigars because he likes cigars. He goes hunting because he likes to hunt.

"The Garner scheme of things shouts to the world: Here I am—no mystery, no deception, just a man trying to do his job. Speaking politically, if that's what you want, O.K. If it isn't what you want, good-by and no hard feelings.

"There's nothing cheap or unreal about all this. No man who's putting on an act can serve in the Congress of the United States for 35 years and still keep the affection and respect of his discerning colleagues.

"Mr. Garner doesn't read an awful lot, except the newspapers. He learns a lot from talking to people. The garden of his mind is carefully pruned.

"Now that it's become fashionable again to salute the flag and stand up when 'The Star-Spangled Banner' is played, it can be said with impunity that no man loves his country with more unabashed fervor than Mr. Garner. If he seems to be less concerned about resounding phrases like 'America's destiny in the world' than some others are, that's because he's so passionately anxious to see America believe in itself. He's convinced of the durability of democracy as a way of life for the American people. He knows that any danger democracy faces in the United States comes not from without but from within—when people grow careless, indifferent, tired.

"Mr. Garner is no nineteenth-century free trader. He believes in protection for American farmers, for American industry. He believes that the concentration of financial power witnessed in the last generation was bad for the country. But, unlike Borah and Brandeis, he doesn't look with horror on big business. He takes the view that probably some businesses are more efficient when they're big and some businesses are better for the public when they're little, and that it's the government's job to try and find out which are which. He profoundly believes that much of the early New Deal legislation was sound, but he shrewdly points to a lack of coherence in its later phases.

"He's for organized labor, but made no secret of his alarm over such excesses as the sit-down strikes: to him, the sit-down strikes were nothing more or less than a forcible seizure of private property. He's against the continuous growth of spending in the government—not only because he sees financial chaos at the end of such a course, but because spending has been accompanied by increasing executive indiscretion.

"No man has exercised more power in Congress over the years than Mr. Garner. It is a power that does not rest on patronage. The vitality of his mind, the ripeness of his political judgment, the warmth of his affection, his unfailing, unmitigated honesty have compelled the admiration of Republicans as well as Democrats, of radicals and conservatives, Easterners and Westerners. All this despite the tradition that the Vice Presidency is a role of impotence.

"Mr. Garner has made a throne out of a political sarcophagus."

News Briefs

Conclusion of an agreement for the barter of 600,000 bales of surplus American cotton for 175,000,000 pounds of British East India rubber to be stored by the United States and British governments for a major war emergency was announced at Washington, Friday night.

More than 250 school children from forty-one schools throughout Staten Island, New York, were stricken with food poisoning Friday after eating a school lunch. A number of adults were also stricken by the same poison as chemists sought the cause.

About 16,000 physicians in 17 New York counties have banded together to insure an individual against $150 to $300 annual doctor's bills for $12.00 to $24.00 per year, press dispatches reported Saturday.

Four thousand railroad workers will be excluded from protection under the Oregon unemployment compensation law for unemployment which occurs after June 30th, according to a survey by the commission. On July 20th the commission will turn over to the railroad retirement board about $400,000.

President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico Friday banned the selling of liquors in many industrial and border towns in Mexico. In addition prohibition will also apply to lands expropriated by the government.

Champion Joe Louis, the Brown Bomber of the boxing world, successfully defended his crown last night when he battered Tony Galento for a technical knockout in the fourth round of the scheduled 15-round fight.

In Circuit Court

Late yesterday afternoon a circuit court jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff in the damage suit of Van E. Grousbeck against J. H. Chambers & Son and awarded the plaintiff damages in the amount of $1,732. Grousbeck asked $20,000 damages for injuries allegedly received when a truck he was driving ran into a flatcar on the south highway near the Chambers mill several months ago. The jury started hearing evidence in the case Saturday and the case went to the jury yesterday at noon.

Hugh Reynolds, convicted May 19th of perjury by a Lane county grand jury, was denied a motion for a new trial Saturday by Judge Carl E. Wimberly at Eugene and posted bond in the sum of $3,000, pending appeal of his case to the state supreme court. Motion for a new trial came after Reynolds was sentenced to serve three years in the state pen. His conviction was result of testimony given in a previous trial, when he was charged with complicity in breaking windows during labor disturbances in Eugene in 1937.

Saturday the circuit court jury heard the start of the damage suit of Van E. Grousbeck against J. H. Chambers & Son of Cottage Grove, in which more than $20,000 damages are sought for injuries received here several months ago, when the plaintiff's truck collided with a freight car on the Chambers spur on the south Pacific highway.

James A. King, Eugene attorney, was found guilty of false swearing Friday by a Lane county jury and sentence deferred for several days.

James Wyatt, resident of Eugene was sentenced to five years in the state pen by Judge G. F. Skipworth Monday on charge of larceny by embezzlement. Wyatt, arrested in Portland Saturday, was brought to Eugene and lodged in the county jail, where he agreed to waive grand jury hearing and was arraigned before Judge Skipworth on a district attorney's information. Wyatt, employed by the Eugene Daily News is alleged to have collected several hundred dollars in advertising from various parts of the country and failed to account for these funds. The total amount he is accused of embezzling is $400.00.

Floyd Peachy and Duane Imlah pleaded guilty in circuit court Monday to charge of simple larceny and were sentenced to serve six months in the county jail by Judge Skipworth.

England Trying to Keep European Peace

Beset with growing anxiety over the possibility of an imminent explosive Nazi coup in Danzig, Great Britain last night sent a note to Chancellor Hitler proposing that the Nazi reich and Britain launch conferences on Europe's critical economic problems.

The only condition, the British memorandum said, is establishment of "mutual confidence and good will."

The tone of the memorandum clearly displayed the aspect of worry taken by the British government in regard to the shaky peace of Europe.

SNOW DELAYS TRAIL WORK

The presence of snow in the eastern mountain section, particularly the Cascadia section, has delayed the building of roads and trails by forest service crews. From two to six inches of snow was reported last week at many points.

NUMBER OF EXPERIMENTAL PROJECTS

There are a number of experimental plots, where burned over land has been reseeded to grass in this section of the state. Where such reseeding is undertaken, the grass or cover crop should be planted just as soon as the ground is burned over, experts from State College advise.

Mrs. Florence Chadwick of Oxnard, California, aunt of Mrs. E. A. Allen, is visiting for a few days with Mrs. Allen and with Mrs. D. F. Franklin.

Mrs. Frank Kelly attended the 45th wedding anniversary celebration of her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hart, in Portland Sunday.

Above Loch Lomond

Scotland's Ben Lomond, over 3,000 feet high and covered with grass to the top, can be ascended between steamer calls, a little more than two hours going up, less coming down. Loch Lomond, at its foot, is the largest lake in Great Britain.

White Waves on Sand of Jet

You have not seen the sands of Europe's most famous seashores if they are always golden. Near Torre del Greco in the Bay of Naples, the white waves roll in on sands as black as jet: pulverized lava from Vesuvius.

Unseen Value

Good glues incorporate one of the unseen values in good furniture. Some glues are almost indestructible and impervious to moisture and these are used in the production of good furniture.
