

Safeway Grocery To Celebrate Its 24th Anniversary

Announcement is being made this week by Warren Shisler, manager of Safeway here, of the firm's 24th anniversary to be celebrated all during the month of August.

Birthplace of the firm was a small, quickly-erected frame building on the outskirts of American Falls, Idaho. The present store there is designated as Store No. 1.

The policy of operation of the first store was based upon the then new idea of buying food-stuffs direct from suppliers, eliminating the many in-between commissions and costs, and passing the savings on to consumers, a policy which has been maintained without variation to this day.

In a few years the little firm had branched out to locations in several nearby towns. In 1921 further expansion was possible and Safeway came to Portland.

In the next few years Safeway grew very rapidly as greater numbers of the Western public became more familiar with the firm's direct merchandising methods. Soon Safeway appeared in many communities up and down the West Coast.

In making the announcement of the 24th Anniversary of the founding of the first store, Mr. Shisler stated that the main thought of his company in putting on such a big celebration at this time is to show some measure of appreciation for the continued increasing patronage that has made such success possible.

Test Cattle Before Exhibiting at Fairs

All cattle shown at the Lane county fair or at any community fair in the county must be from a herd accredited as free from contagious abortion or must be accompanied by a certificate showing that they have been tested within 60 days prior to the date of the show indicating that they are free from this disease. Also, all cattle over one year old must be tested for tuberculosis during 1939 and a certificate of health must be filed with the secretary of the fair.

Cattle owners expecting to exhibit at either the county fair or a community fair should notify O. S. Fletcher, county agent, at once so that arrangements may be made for a veterinarian to test the cattle in ample time to obtain reports before the community fair or county fair where they are to be shown first. The tests will be made by a federal veterinarian without charge if requests for tests are submitted promptly.
