

Marked Traffic Lines Are Safety Device

A whisk broom and a 5-gallon can of tar paint started the system of marking traffic lanes which today is used on thousands of miles of western highways.

Motorists who drive safely along crowded roads owe a debt of gratitude to D. A. Beauregard, former deputy sheriff and traffic officer of Santa Cruz, California, whose quick mind and long experience in guiding traffic saw the possibilities in using lanes to increase speed and prevent accidents.

"It wasn't my idea," Mr. Beauregard modestly told a representative of the "Share-the-Road" club, but when you hear the story of how the marking originated, you will realize that to Mr. Beauregard belongs the credit, because he perfected the idea and demonstrated its value.

"I was working for the county in 1920 and was patrolling the Scotch Valley grade between Los Gatos and Santa Cruz," Mr. Beauregard says. "A reverse curve there gave us lots of trouble, because it was natural for cars to swing over to the wrong side of the road. Accidents were frequent.

"One day a truck coming down the hill threw a rod through the crankcase and dribbled oil down the center of the road. The next cars that came along started down the hill as usual, then swung sharply back to their own side. I saw several drivers look back curiously. Finally, one I knew stopped.

"That's the best idea I ever saw," he told me. "That line helps a fellow drive faster and safer."

"Stage drivers also complimented the line. I took the sheriff out to see it and we tried to get an appropriation to paint the curves. This was refused, so I took a whiskbroom and a 5-gallon can of tar paint and painted a dividing line on the curves where we're having trouble.

"Immediately the number of accidents on that road was reduced fifty per cent. News of the invention spread and it was quickly adopted by the State Highway Department."

With traffic lines in use everywhere now, safety on the road is merely a matter of each motorist staying on his own side. As a supplement to Mr. Beauregard's idea of marking lanes, Shell dealers have organized the "Share-the-Road" club to stimulate motorist in practicing common-sense driving and in staying in their own lanes.

"The famous center line marking originated by Mr. Beauregard is a perfect exemplification of Shell's Share-the-Road plan," said Shell Local Manager Sunderland.

"Each of these ideas is dedicated to the principle of giving the other fellow a chance. The traffic lines mark the highway. Shell dealers mark the cars by giving each one a handsome emblem to attach above the rear license plate. Nearly a million motorists in the west have joined the 'Share-the-Road' club. All who have not joined are invited to call at any Shell dealer's station and have the emblem put on free of charge."

Lynx Hollow

The Lynx Hollow school board held a meeting recently to install the new members and conduct routine business. The school house will be kalsomined and cleaned. School will start the 5th of September.

Mrs. Nancy Neale returned recently from a visit with her sister, Mrs. William James of Cloverdale. She also visited another sister, Mrs. Ellen LaJoie, at Wendling.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Davenport of Cottage Grove were recent guests at the Lyle Taylor home. Mr. and Mrs. Haight were hosts recently to a reunion of their family, with twenty-one guests present.

Those attending the South Dakota picnic from here were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Radway and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Eppenbaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pullen and son were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wolfard recently.

Lyle Taylor has returned to Bar View after spending the week end at home.

A meeting was held at the high school Saturday evening to arrange for control of the gymnasium and high school buildings as a community project. The members of the newly elected board are L. S. Ayotte from this district; Mrs. Horn, Mrs. Miles Wicks, Mrs. Sullivan and Mr. Adams. The directors will meet soon to draw up by-laws and make plans for the community uses.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Beach attended the Nebraska picnic at Corvallis Sunday.

For the sake of the editor's reputation we would like to state that he has been sick in bed with flu most of the week and we have had to do the best we could with no help but the editor's wife.—The Sentinel Force.

Dorena and Union in Softball Playoffs

Dorena and Union clinched their positions for the local playoff during last week's play. These two teams hold down third and second places respectively and with only three more games to be played neither can be ousted from their positions. Union meets Bohemia Club and Dorena will play Eagles in their last games of the regular schedule. Knickerbocker's meets Post Office in the last regular scheduled game August 16. None of these games will affect the playoff in any way.

Knickerbocker's swamped the second place Union team 12 to 2 Thursday evening August 4. Off to a four run start in the first inning the league leaders were Patton and Mason for 16 hits.

Union defeated Quality Market by an 8 to 7 score in a hard-fought game Tuesday evening. Quality Market scored six runs in the first inning but Mason relieved Patton and held them scoreless until the last inning when they tied the score at seven all off Patton who had come back in to pitch. Union scored the winning run in the last of the seventh on a hit, an error and an infield out.

The Eagles scored their second victory of the season when they outscored the Postoffice in a free hitting game by a score of 17 to 13. Hits were the order of the day with both teams hitting hard. The scores:

ATTEND HOMEMAKERS' CAMP

Miss Belle Burkholder and Mrs. Joe Perkins of Mosby Creek returned Sunday night from the Homemakers' camp held August 1st to 6th at Camp Cleawox. They were accompanied by Miss May Hewes of Springfield and Jean Edmundsen of Goshen. Mrs. Elmo Chase of Eugene took four others from Lane county but Coos county had the largest attendance. Miss Julia Bennett of Coquille, home demonstration agent, was in charge of the camp. About 75 in all attended. Time was spent hiking, boating, swimming, fishing, playing games and putting on stunts and programs before the fireplace each evening.

Church was attended on Sunday. Some of the families of those in camp were Sunday visitors. Outside of a few minor mishaps, everything went off smoothly.

This camp has been conducted for several years by the Extension Service of Oregon State college. Well-balanced meals are served in the lodges. Campfire girls, boy scouts and girl scouts use the camp. Camping facilities are free, all being a part of the
