GOOD FISHING

Most everybody who has given any thought to the subject likely has an opinion regarding the damage the construction of the Willamette valley flood control project will entail to the fishing industry of this section. If you haven't thought much about the situation, don't you think it would take a fish with a pretty healthy constitution to run the gauntlet of the many open sewers and other contamination found in the Willamette from here to Portland and come out alive? And even if alive, the edibility of the fish would be considerably lessened. Fact is we'd have to be pretty hungry before we would eat one that had made the 146 mile journey by river. So why all the talk about the dams ruining the fishing?

SMART FELLER.

There are 273,000 acres of land in the Willamette valley covered by flood waters in a flood like 1927 which wiped out West Springfield. Still a smart fellow employed by the fish commission in a Corvallis speech said it would be cheaper for the government to buy all the flooded land and turn it back to the jackrabbits than build the Willamette project. He might as well have said it would be cheaper to give Oregon back to the Indians than try to develop the state. In that case of course he would be out of a job.—Springfield News.

There is a growing suspicion in Washington that John L. Lewis of the CIO has deserted the new deal and gone over to the camp of Senator Burton Wheeler, an unannounced candidate for the presidency under the banner of an independent democrat. If these rumors be true, we are afraid the switch of Mr. Lewis to the Wheeler camp won't make the Wheeler camp smell any better, because unless most people miss their guess there are a lot of strings tied to any support Mr. Lewis will give any candidate.

Stalin has canned the chief weather man of Russia because the chief, he says, failed to tell him how severe the winter weather was in Finland, according to press reports. However, where Stalin erred was in not having someone tell him how well the Finns could fight. Anyway the U. S. weathermen's job would not be worth much if they were held accountable for everything they tell the public about the weather.

4-H CLUB NEWS

County Club Agent R. C. Kuehner has received a handsome gold medal to be presented to Elberta Brown who has received the highest county rating in the eleventh national 4-H canning contest.

The purpose of the annual competition is to teach successful home preservation of fruits, vegetables and meats and to increase their use to promote better balanced and more healthful and economical diets.

The activity was conducted by the Extension service the past year and was made possible through the interest of the Kerr Glass Corporation which is cooperating to further 4-H club work among more than 1,250,000 members in the nation.

It is estimated that 22 girls in the county took some part in this enterprise, and to that extent benefited themselves, their parents and the community. There were 1360 girls enrolled in county 4-H clubs for the year 1939.

LOGGER HURT

A. Walker, employed by the Green Ridge Lumber Co. west of Walker, was painfully hurt Tuesday by a falling tree. Details of the accident were not learned, but it is understood Mr. Walker was injured by a falling tree, which struck him across the lower part of his chest, breaking several ribs. He was given first aid here and rushed to a Eugene hospital in an ambulance.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

(Lois Hansen, Editor)

The Cottage Grove freshmen and sophomores won their first basketball game of the season as they edged out the Saint Mary's freshmen and sophomores 25-22 Friday night in the gym.

The Grovers, led by Blackmore, rallied to eke out a win in the final quarter.

Blackmore and Thies scored five points each to lead the winners. Heitzman tallied nine counters for the losers.

The Lion freshmen, coached by Curtis French, head football coach, will seek their second straight win when they tangle with the Junction City freshmen at 6:30, Friday at Junction City.

The probable line-up for the Lions will be: Wicks and Isham, forwards; Krause, center; Daugherty and Cooley, guards.

There have been three men promoted to the Lions' B squad. These men were Blackmore, Jenkins and Zimmerly.

FFA Takes One On Chin

The Cottage Grove FFA basketball quintet took one on the chin when they lost a 33-37 decision to the Model Grocers of Eugene Friday night in the gym here.

Wolf, diminutive Grocer forward, led the winners with 16 points, Decker, FFA center, countered 17 for the losers. The local FFA is a member of a league of six teams and will play their first league game with Junction City there Wednesday.

Life Begins in 40.

"Life Begins in 40" is the motto which was chosen by the senior class last Thursday. The class chose pink and silver as its colors and the pink carnation as its flower. Much lively discussion is being carried on as to whether formal or caps and gowns will be worn for commencement.

Hi-Y Elects

The Hi-Y met January 10, and elected the following officers: President, Bill Spies; vice president, Jimmie Blicke; secretary, Dick Smith; treasurer, Harry Sturges; sergeant at arms, Vinal Randall.

January 22, the club members, with their parents, will go to Eugene where the club will be initiated.

Home Ec to Have Club

At the last meeting of the Home Economics club the club decided to have a council for home economics, as there is such a large membership. Virginia Brown, freshman; Grace Thayer, sophomore; Lura Wilson, junior; Martha Arnold, senior, were chosen as representatives to the Home Ec council from the various classes.

Eight Initiated (Delayed)

Paul Davenport, Jimmy Blicke, Margaret Monson, Betty Adkins, Jean Stewart, Lee Kruse, Geraldine Kem and Ethel Ann Newton were formally initiated into the Omicron Chapter of the National Honor Society Tuesday evening of last week at a candlelight ceremony, with parents and faculty present.

The initiation was preceded by a vocal solo by Wendell Small, a graduate of 39, with Miss Jelinek as accompanist, and an accordion solo by Gladys Lemley.

Bill Spies, Bill Earl, Martha Arnold and Bernice Smith, officers, listed and explained the ideals of the society. Other members participating in the ceremony were: Dorothea Wright, Gladys Lemley, Dale Snider, Miriam Ferrin, Delbert Smith and Ethel Halverson. The initiates took the oath, signed the constitution, and received their pins.

The ceremony was followed by an impromptu program presented by the initiates, which created much fun.

Mr. Ferrin gave a talk on the significance of membership in the society, while refreshments were being served.

Margaret Monson was appointed yell leader for the coming basketball season with Ray Randall and Arline Anderson as assistants.

The Men's Toggery donated 12 basketball sweat shirts to the B squad and 16 skull caps to the pep club recently.

The pep club earned sufficient funds for three yell leaders' sweaters through the sale of pencils with the basketball schedule printed in blue on gold pencils, and a candy sale.

Final examinations were given last week in all one-semester courses. The second semester will begin Monday, January 22.

PORTLAND MAN TO BE NOMINATED

Henry L. Corbett of Portland, Oregon, will be nominated for election as a member of the board of directors of the Southern Pacific company at the annual meeting of the company's stockholders April 3, according to announcement by A. D. McDonald, president.

Paradoxical History

EARL E. COOPER

Napoleon
 As long as there is a French history the name of Napoleon will undoubtedly occupy a very conspicuous spot in it. Out of such a life as his filled with so many unbelievable facts it approaches the impossible to choose the most unusual. First, we think of Napoleon as a Frenchman but such he was not. He was far more an Italian, being born on the island of Corsica, just south of Italy. He was taken from there to a French military school where he learned to speak the French language at the age of nine. Here also he gleaned much of the knowledge which was to aid him in placing his name with the great generals of all time.

His efficiency as a military expert is well illustrated in the following incident. Napoleon was sleeping in his tent at the time of an important battle in which he was engaged. One of his lesser officers dashed into the tent and upon seeing Bonaparte tiptoed over to the still form and touched him lightly upon the shoulder. "Wake up, sir," he whispered.

Napoleon opened his eyes and asked what the matter was. The officer apologized for waking his superior and went on to say that the enemy had made an unexpected attack upon the right flank. "On our right flank?" asked Napoleon. "Open that drawer on your right and you will find a plan of action against an attack on our flank. Follow that plan. Good-night." The Little Corporal then turned to the wall and the peacefulness of sleep.

A strange fact is that Napoleon's greatest achievement did not occur in battle, but in law. Even today when the results of all that he did in war have dimmed the Code Napoleon still has a prominent spot in the laws of France. This is odd indeed, when considered that most of his military ventures had as far reaching effects as any in history. Strange, too, that after Napoleon's downfall was brought about by the English, ironically, the coffin for his first burial at St. Helena was constructed from an Englishman's mahogany table.

GRANTS PASS MAN SENTENCED

Judge H. D. Norton sentenced F. L. Coon to not more than 18 months in the state penitentiary at Grants Pass Saturday. Then hinting at parole he dropped the judicial role and declared from the bench that he "personally" wanted to be "first" to donate money to cover Coon's default as county clerk.

Coon rose immediately to answer the judge to declare that his contribution was welcome but unnecessary; other friends had already donated sufficient money.

Coon wrote out a check at the direction of District Attorney Orval J. Millard, who had just told the court that his search of telegraph company records back to 1937 showed at least $345.52 had been wrongfully taken. Records of the company previous to that time had been discarded, Millard said.

BIG BEEKEEPERS TOTAL 253

Two hundred and fifty-three Oregon beekeepers had apiaries ranging from 50 to 1,000 colonies of bees in 1939, according to the annual report of the bee inspector for the state department of agriculture. Many places with only a few colonies were not included in this list.

NEWSPAPERMEN OF STATE TO MEET AT U. O. JAN. 25.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON.—Newspapermen of Oregon will hear about propaganda, the Oriental situation, coast labor problems, newspaper features and various phases of advertising when they meet on the University of Oregon campus Thursday, Friday and Saturday, January 25, 26 and 27, it was announced here today by George Turnbull, professor of journalism and secretary of the conference.

Headline speakers will include Donald J. Sterling, managing editor of the Oregon Journal, who will speak on features; Wayne L. Morse, dean of the university law school and coast arbitrator for maritime labor controversies; Philip L. Parish, chief editorial writer for The Oregonian, whose subject will be propaganda; Harold J. Noble, professor of history at the university, who has just returned from Japan, and Robert G. Smith, advertising director of Lippman, Wolfe and company, Portland.

RESOURCEFULNESS

Where does a young man get the best business training? In a small or large shop? In a small or large town?

A salesman of type-making equipment, who has sold machines everywhere, says that the resourcefulness and self-dependence of the worker in the small shop, in the small town, would seem incredible to the worker in the big shop, in the big city.

This salesman sold his equipment to the proprietor of a small-town newspaper. The machine is exceedingly complicated. In the city an apprentice usually works two years before he becomes a journeyman operator. In the small town, however, before he signed the order, the publisher said to the salesman, "Do you think my sister's son, who is now driving a bakery wagon, could operate the machine?" "Oh, certainly," said the salesman, eager for a sale, "we'll send an instructor here to teach him."

The instructor stayed with the young man four weeks and then had to leave to handle another installation. He was unable to get back to the plant for two months. He expected to find the equipment wrecked. Instead he found that it was operating smoothly.

The small-town youth had mastered his job in less than a twentieth of the time considered necessary in the city. Of course, the quality of his workmanship might not be acceptable to a big city plant, but it was satisfactory in the place where it was used.
