

Young Oregonian Club Gives Two Programs Yesterday Afternoon

The Young Oregonian club of Portland, sponsored by the Oregonian, stopped here yesterday and gave two programs, one at the joint meeting of the Lions club and Chamber of Commerce and a special program at the high school auditorium. The club, 35 in number, is traveling by special bus and is under the direction of J. C. Amber and its purpose is to develop hobbies and special talent of youngsters. The first stop was made at Albany and stops were made at principal cities down the valley. After a short program at the Lions-Chamber of Commerce meeting, an hour's program given at the high school consisted of vocal solos, tumbling and trick skating, demonstration by a chalk artist, slight of hand entertainment, accordion solos, accordion trios, string instrument trios, harmonica trios with one girl playing four harmonicas and a variety of other numbers. From here the young people went to Roseburg and will travel up the coast to Portland.

BLACK SANDS

Mention Oregon black sands as a commercial possibility and you'll probably get a pitying look. This attitude is readily understandable. For every successful attempt to make a profit out of these sands, there has been a discouragingly large number of failures. The reasons for failures are well known to experienced people. The sands have been worked for gold and platinum. Some ventures have failed because of inexperience, but most of them have been due to the difficult problem of separating the gold, sometimes finely divided, from the heavy residues of black sands which accumulated in sluices or various other pieces of apparatus.

What is this material called black sands that has caused the beach placer miner so much grief? Everyone has noticed black streaks or bands in sandbars of stream beds or parts of ocean beaches. Usually the mineral forming these streaks is essentially magnetite or magnetic oxide of iron. Most rocks contain a small amount of magnetite as an accessory mineral. It is black and more than twice as heavy as the silicate rocks with which it may be associated. When surface rocks weather and the eroded portions are carried downgrade by rains and streams, the heavier magnetite grains resist the washing action more than the silicate grains, and so tend to form concentrations in black spots, streaks and bands. Ocean waves act on beach sands in a similar manner, thus forming concentrations of the heavy mineral along beaches. Ancient shorelines exist in the form of terraces, perhaps hundreds of feet above the present ocean level and back several miles from the present beach. The ancient beach terraces contain black sand concentrations similar to present-day beaches.—The Ore Bin.

Mercury Production In Oregon Important

Mercury production in Oregon is becoming increasingly important and may equal the California production in 1940 says the Ore Bin. In addition to the Black Butte mine near here, the most important mine in the state at the present time is near Sutherlin, in Douglas county. Says the Ore Bin: "Mercury jumped from less than $80 to about $160 per flask during 1939 Oregon quicksilver was sold this last week at a price of $180 per flask. Price fluctuations have been marked during the last six months as the demand for the metal is based both on the war news from European countries and on the current requirements of industry in this country. The largest individual quicksilver producer in the United States at the present time is the Bonanza Mine at Sutherlin, Oregon, H. C. Wilmot, manager. The Bonanza produced 500 flasks in February, 1940, and is pegged for a continuing production of nearly 600 flasks per month. With the Bonanza producing at this rate and other operations accelerating their production, it is not unlikely that Oregon production will equal that of California for the year 1940."

Aluminum and Architecture
As an architectural metal, aluminum has the decorative softness of stone, and the structural strength of mild steel

Dorena Grangers to Hold Open Meeting

Thursday evening, March 21st, preceding the regular grange meeting, there will be an open session to which the public is invited to hear two able speakers, A. W. Prilaux, editor of the Eugene Daily News, who will speak about taxes. James W. Walker will talk of forest fire prevention and will also demonstrate short-wave radio.

At the close of the grange meeting refreshments will be served by committee in charge: Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Pacholke, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Rissue, Mr. and Mrs. E. Presnell, Mr. and Mrs. L. Powell, J. Read and Miss Margaret Read.

Saturday evening, March 23, the Dorena grange will be host to Thurston and Goshen when they will present their play festival. The Thurston grange play is entitled, "Moonsigns." Goshen presents, "The Tiger's Claw."

There is no charge for these plays, the idea being to present the plays for the enjoyment of the members of the different organizations and also for the public to enjoy.—Etta A. Finnerty, Grange Reporter.

Boy: "Dad, do you know that in some parts of India a man doesn't know his wife until he marries her?"

Dad: "Why single out India?"

Farmers Should Sign AAA Applications

Preparation of applications for payment under the 1939 Agricultural Conservation program were completed in the county agricultural conservation association office Monday, according to Clair Wilkes, assistant secretary. All applications must be signed by co-operators before the close of March 31. The AAA will not make payments on applications signed after that date. All interested parties are being notified that their applications are ready and that they should call at the association office and sign them at once.
