

Valley Prune Crop Is Light This Year

The Willamette valley dried prune production will be one of the lowest on record but "fairly good" prospects exist in eastern Oregon, the agriculture marketing service reported this week.

Major harvest operations will begin about August 10.

The production estimate for all purposes in Oregon and in Washington reached 85,700, fresh basis, on July 1 compared with 211,600 last year and 164,660, the ten-year average. Idaho, eastern Oregon and Washington forecasts totaled 48,300 fresh tons against 51,600 a year ago and 44,090 average of 120,570.

West Oregon and Washington output, principally for drying and canning, will run about 37,400 tons, a decline from the 160,000 tons in 1939 and the ten-year average of 120,570.

Prospects are generally favorable in other important crop areas. California's estimate 202,000 tons compared with 185,000 last season and 198,000 the average.

Considerable scab and splitting have been reported and there may be a higher percentage of off grade fruit.

UNPAMPERED COW HAILED AS CHAMP

BATTLEBORO, Vermont — An "unpampered" cow that has given 230,723 pounds of milk was hailed Saturday by the Holstein Friesian Association of America as a new, all-time champion life-time producer.

The imposing title was awarded to Ionia Aggie Sadie Vale, a registered Holstein in the Ionia state hospital at Ionia, Michigan.

"Sadie Vale" is no "box stall champion." She has received exactly the same care as her herd mates, standing in the lineup with them, being milked at the same time in the same way and going to and from the same pastures at the same time.

Lament

Tessie leaned against the gate; Its hinges both were rusted; They couldn't carry Tessie's weight And now her gate is busted.
