

Right Way Rules For Safety's Sake

Few rules of the road are less understood or more misunderstood than those having to do with right-of-way, according to the legal department of the Oregon State Motor Association.

Pointing out that many accidents are caused by motorists who have either a vague or mistaken idea concerning right-of-way rules, the motorists' organization presented the following summary of provisions of the Vehicle Code on the subject:

Drivers, when approaching high-way intersections, shall look out for and give right of way to vehicles on the right, simultaneously approaching a given point, whether such vehicle first enters or reaches the intersection or not; provided, that the foregoing provisions shall not apply at any intersection where and when traffic is controlled by traffic control signals or police officers.

Any driver entering an intersection at an unlawful speed shall forfeit any right of way which he would otherwise have under this rule.

When intending to turn left, the driver must give a proper arm signal continuously for the last fifty feet before turning, but the actual turn must not be made until it can be done with reasonable safety. The person turning must yield the right-of-way to all oncoming traffic within the intersection or so close as to constitute an immediate hazard. Thereafter the driver may proceed to make the turn, and oncoming traffic approaching the intersection must permit the turning car to proceed.

Upon entering an arterial or through highway, the driver must first stop and yield the right-of-way to all traffic immediately approaching. Thereafter he may proceed and all vehicles approaching the intersection on the through highway must yield the right-of-way to him.

Drivers entering public highways from private roads or driveways have no right-of-way, but must wait until they can proceed safely.

Pedestrians have the right-of-way within marked crosswalks or in unmarked crosswalks at the end of a block. While pedestrians who "jaywalk" do not have the right-of-way, their safety remains an obligation of the motorist.

NAVY AGE LIMIT LOWERED

Secretary of the Navy Knox Saturday announced that in order to encourage enlistments of younger men, particularly those of high school caliber, the U. S. Navy has reopened enlistments of minors between the ages of seventeen and eighteen to serve until they reach their twenty-first birthday. Enlistments of these young men will only be made with the consent of their parents or guardians.

This decision was made as a result of the Navy's previous experience with the enlistments of young men of this age from which approximately twenty per cent of its first enlistments were obtained.

CLOCK TICKS TAX TOO

It has been estimated that state and federal gasoline taxes amount to $2.106 a minute, or $35.10 a second, throughout the year, according to the Oregon State Motor association. Total state, local, and federal motor vehicle taxes amount to approximately $3,333 a minute or $55.55 a second.

Advertisers Live in

GLASS HOUSES

WHAT they promise in their advertisements, and what they deliver in their merchandise, are right there for all to see.

If they deliver what they promise, they make friends and steady customers. If not they make enemies, lose patronage and finally go out of business.

Those are the cold, hard reasons why honesty is the best policy—especially in advertising.

But the real fact is that advertisers as a class are humanly jealous of their good names. The trade-marks of manufacturers and the published recommendations of merchants are only accorded to products which they can offer you with confidence and pride.

You can trust the ads to lead you to sound values.
