

Rex Wheat Found High in Vitamin Content by USDA

That both chemical analysis and baking tests show flour made from Rex wheat to be of superior quality in many respects is shown in official reports of the federal bureau of plant industry received at Oregon State college.

Among other qualities Rex is shown by these tests to have the highest carotene content of any western wheat with the exception of Jenkin club, the favorite winter wheat of western Oregon. Carotene is the basic source of Vitamin A and, unless bleached out, gives flour a slight yellowish color.

Although Rex wheat has tested consistently high in carotene content, flour made from it bleaches white without difficulty when desired, the report adds.

Officials of the Eastern Oregon Wheat league, concerned with recent milling discounts against Rex wheat, are pointing to these federal reports as indicating the superiority of Rex flour. Rex, a hybrid originated at the Moro branch experiment station, has become the favorite winter wheat in most parts of the Columbia basin because of its high yields, smut resistance and hardness.

Millers have discounted the wheat after reporting difficulty with it in certain milling processes.

In baking tests the federal bureau has reported Rex as unusual in that it combines a long "doughball" time, usually associated with hard wheat, with large particle size characteristics of soft wheat.

Rex of the Rex selections are listed among the varieties that made the best cookies and cakes, while as to bread the report says that "it is of interest to note that Rex and the two Rex selections were highest in loaf volume even though they were inferior in grain."

U. OF O. STUDENT FORUM TO VISIT MANY CITIES

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene—Speaking on a topic of special significance at this time, "What is the American Way?" more than 20 members of the men's discussion group of the University of Oregon will again visit a large number of cities and towns throughout the state, it was announced here by W. A. Dahlberg, professor of speech.

The speakers, who will be dispatched in small groups to communities requesting them, will use the now nationally famous forum system, developed at the University of Oregon to replace the old style debate in forensics. America's basic philosophy, as revealed through the lives of famous men, will be discussed. Historical precedents for such integral parts of the American political scheme as the banking and credit laws, presidential tenure, pan-American Union and other factors will be included in the talks.

Brenda has joined the West Coast wildflower movement and is cooperating with the thousands of wildflower clubs organized throughout the west to foster and preserve one of nature's most beautiful and colorful creations—the wildflower.

Hundreds of leading citizens are supporting this conservation and Richfield Oil is assisting this great enterprise by giving wildflower seeds free to the many thousands of people interested in this worthwhile endeavor.

From The Rear Rank

The conspicuous absence of news from the Battery to reach you prompts the writer to raise his voice. I will try to convey with some semblance of continuity, items of importance that I believe will be of interest; something of the little things that make us happy, and our rewards.

Battery E News—Events.

It was back to the wind and sand after Christmas. A hasty general clean-up in time to entertain Lieutenant-General Dewitt, Commander of the Fourth Army of the United States. The inspection over, a rumor developed that Alaska would be our ultimate destination, probably by the third month of the year. Be that as it may, through this similar grapevine we were to h-a-v-e gone to Cuba, Panama, Hawaii and Porto Rico.

Our intensive training period rather than being over seems to be but well started. We have had three hikes within a period of the past week. These little jaunts range from five to ten miles and usually include full packs and rifles. Our last hike was taken in what I would call a hurricane but the locals call a light blow. The wind was blowing at a 65-mile-an-hour clip and the rain was coming down in the proverbial buckets, full. Its a funny thing the rain never seems to touch the ground here, it drops down to about three feet and then blows on a horizontal plane. Strategically the hike was a howling success, our destination was reached, but personally I prefer my maneuvering in the heat of some nice sunny afternoon.

Another shift of officers has been completed. Our new Battery Commander is Captain Robert M. Huston, originally of Albany, Lieutenant Wilbur W. McDonald, of Marshfield, is our present Gun Commander. Lieutenant Leon VanNortwick has been transferred to Headquarters Battery second Battalion.

Battery E was on guard last Saturday. There was nothing to forewarn the sentries as they took charge of their posts of the impending attack that was even then developing. All at once a shout, followed immediately by more of the same rent the air. Coming down the road was what appeared to be an enemy convoy, but in reality was a caravan of girls. Well, they stormed the gate and took the fort but Corporal Carol Sullivan, alone and unassisted, took control of the situation. Six-foot-six fighting Corporal immediately transformed into the most suave gentleman. Under his guidance the scenic beauties were unfold and the points of interest explained. The last question answered, the caravan departed. Order was restored and our little Corporal went back to his detective story.

Battery Briefs.

Sergeant Claude Miller and Sergeant Oscar Newton have been transferred to Fort Stevens where they are attached to the conscript training program under our former Battery Commander, Captain Lawrence Morgan.

Sergeant Robert Mills has transferred to Battery G, which is the Searchlight Battery from Salem.

The following enlisted men have been promoted to the rank of Corporal: Clair O. Adams, Howard L. Ernest, Elton M. Buck, Virgil L. Guggisberg, Robert B. Newton, Ivan E. Patton, Owen V. Sloan.

Fish Regulations to Be Made February 6, 7

A sure sign that Oregon's 1941 trout season is not too far distant is given in announcement by the Oregon State Game Commission of a two-day session, February 7 and 8, when regulations for fishing on waters of the state will be promulgated. The hearing will be held in the Portland office of the commission, 616 Oregon Building.

Suggestions and recommendations of both sportsmen's groups and individuals are welcome. Persons may appear before the Commission or transmit their ideas by mail.

They spent sometime at the park headquarters and heard the park superintendent broadcast his report. They returned home by way of Roseburg.

Mrs. Paul Franklin and infant son who had been visiting relatives at Bakersfield, California, stopped here Friday to visit Mrs. Franklin's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Banton, and other relatives. Mrs. Franklin, who was Geraldine Banton, spent her girlhood here, but now lives at Sunnyside, Washington. The baby, Paul Glen, is the first great grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. Banton.
