

Chevrolet Used Car Sales Gain

DETROIT — Chevrolet dealers' continuance, during 1940, of used car sales gains evident since the factory's used car merchandising program was launched several years ago, assures still greater emphasis, in 1941, on the used car reconconditioning system which from the standpoint of the buyer is the most vital feature of the program. W. E. Holler, general sales manager, and sponsor of the highly successful operation, made this announcement here Monday.

"Besides leading the industry in car sales in 1940, for the ninth time in 10 years, Chevrolet dealers lengthened their lead in the used car end of the business," Mr. Hiller said. "They sold 1,909,972 used cars, a figure substantially in excess of the huge 1929 total, and second only to the all-time peak year 1936. More used cars were sold—by some 340,000—than in the calendar year 1939.

"Such a sales record reflects a more and more widespread recognition on the part of the public that used cars obtained from a reliable source are sound transportation values. Chevrolet's effort for the last five years has been to elevate the quality of dealers' used car offerings, by means of basic improvements in the reconconditioning system. It was felt that in the course of time, greater attention to that phase of used car operations would pay for itself by establishing the Chevrolet dealer, in the mind of the buyer, as a reliable source to go to when in need of a used car.

Earthquake Felt Here.

An earth tremor, which was distinct in southern Oregon early Sunday morning, was also felt here. Curtis Veatch, who is on the old Veatch homestead west of town, was awakened at 1:30 a. m. Sunday by the quake. Mr. Veatch said the shock was very brief, but was sufficient to wake him. He said he experienced the same sensation as if he were on a bridge and felt the tread of a cat or dog walking over the bridge.

Others over this section were also aroused from slumbers by the quake.

Working on Parking Problem.

Myron Perry, police chief, said yesterday he was not ready to submit any recommendations relative to the local parking problem, but that the Main street parking limit would probably be cut from one hour to thirty minutes and that the same limits would likely apply to the side streets for a half block back.

The public has been very cooperative he said with reference to parking regulations.

ABOUT THE INFANTILE PARALYSIS CAMPAIGN

United States Post Office, Cottage Grove, Oregon February 12, 1941

The Cottage Grove Sentinel
Cottage Grove, Oregon.
Gentlemen:

I had hoped it would be possible to issue statement in your paper this week regarding Infantile Paralysis contribution in this community, but owing to the fact that a few of the districts have not yet reported and for the reason that contributions are still being received, I think it best to postpone this until your next week's issue and by that time Ruth DeLong, secretary-treasurer, and I will have a complete statement ready for your paper.

Several places of business contributed much of their time to help sell button tags, Mr. Sprague, principal of elementary school, did a very fine piece of work in handling the ticket sales for the basketball game, and both the union high school and elementary school bands did wonderful work in advertising, and furnish entertainment at the game. Their splendid advancement brought very favorable comment in the city and surrounding country.

Contribution at a meeting of Eastern Star lodge brought $5.45; the benefit bridge party given by Mrs. N. J. Nelson netted $6.50; donations from Dorena postmaster's efforts brought $7.10; and just yesterday $2 was received from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gettys; the Dorena-Cresswell basketball game at high school gymnasium February 6 brought gross receipts $4.60 of which expenses of gymnasium will be deducted, leaving a balance net of $1.60, this was a very fine game and I am sorry there were so many other functions that caused attendance to be very small but nevertheless these basketball teams deserve high praise for their efforts in trying to put over something to help the worthy cause; employees of the J. C. Penney store brought a card filled with $2 in coin, and several other donations from $1 to $2 were received from persons who asked not to publish names of donors.

Again I wish to thank all who have helped make this year's Infantile Paralysis campaign a greater success than 1940 and I feel certain that with the same spirit of cooperation next year, we will show an even greater increase in contributions to help the child around your own corner.

Sincerely yours,
N. J. NELSON, JR.
Chairman.

Tall Fescue Grass Good for Pasture

Tall fescue grass is by no means a new grass in Oregon, but the extent of its possibilities for forage in this state is only now becoming fully appreciated, according to farm crops specialists at Oregon State college, who have been watching the performance of this grass throughout the state.

Tall fescue is now being grown for seed purposes, for pasture use, particularly by sheep, and is even cut at times for hay because it produces a rank leafy growth which makes hay that compares favorably with that made from other grasses.

Probably the oldest seeding of tall fescue in Oregon is on the central experiment station farm at Corvallis. This seeding is now in its twenty-second year of growth and during this entire period it has been a consistent producer of forage and seed.

Tall fescue is a development from meadow fescue but is a larger and more vigorous plant than its parents. It is extremely long lived and has a wide range of adaptability, being able to grow on a wide variety of soils and under practically any climatic conditions prevailing in western Oregon and in quite a number of regions in eastern Oregon.

When it was first introduced as a pasture grass many stockmen thought that, because of its coarse growth, it would be unsatisfactory for sheep pasture. In recent years, however, some sheepmen in the state have obtained a phenomenal amount of pasture from it, and find it particularly valuable for late fall and winter grazing. Its ability to remain green and produce forage in the late summer and fall months can be attributed to its deep root system, according to the agronomists.

Tall fescue is also proving valuable on logged-off land and it is being used successfully in irrigated pastures in combination with other grasses and legumes. Improved seed producing strains have been introduced in the state by the experiment station, so that now fairly large supplies are available for planting by farmers and stockmen.

Ford Car Stolen Here Tuesday Is Found at Dorena

A Ford V-8 sedan, stolen from W. L. Black at Sixth and Main Tuesday afternoon, was recovered by local officers about four hours after the theft was reported. It was found abandoned a mile and a half above Dorena by Myron Perry, chief of police. Information regarding the theft was reported to Guy Smith, night officer, at 3:50 Tuesday afternoon and the car recovered at 9:00 p. m. the same day. When found the car had a flat tire, in fact two flat tires as the spare was found to be flat also, indicating the thieves had tire trouble. When stolen the car contained a package of groceries and a pair of ladies shoes. The shoes were taken, but the groceries left untouched.

FOREST PLANTINGS AVAILABLE

SALEM, Oregon.—Farmers who intend to establish woodlots, windbreaks or shelterbelts this spring should submit their orders for tree seedlings by the first of March, according to State Forester N. S. Rogers. Indications point to an early spring in the Willamette Valley, according to the forecaster, which will mean the development of the new spring growth in the seedlings several weeks prior to that of a normal season. As soon as the growth starts it is useless to ship trees, for few of them will survive the digging and transplanting.

Information concerning a available species and instructions relative to ordering and planting can be secured by sending a letter to the State Forester in Salem, Oregon, or by getting in touch with the local county agent.
