

Ford Airplane Engine Plant Emerges From "Cocoon"

WORKMEN have begun tearing down the huge fibre board shelter inside which the $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine plant has risen in the dead of winter at Dearborn, Mich. Shown above is part of the first section of the plant, which will be completed during the next week. The entire plant will be completed late in March—little more than six months from the time ground was broken—and will be in production in April.

Special Assembly.

Walter Everman presented a demonstration of the wonders of liquid air to the students at a special assembly Tuesday. Mr. Everman performed several experiments to show the qualities of the air in the liquid state. Some of the qualities he demonstrated were: Temperature at approximately 400° below zero; freezing of articles with which it comes in contact; boiling away rapidly; making articles highly combustible. Air is greatly condensed when liquified and causes pressure when it returns to gaseous state. He stated that liquid air has possibilities of use in every day life but as yet it is too expensive. He also stated that Portland has the only liquid air plant in the immediate northwest.

Seniors Exempt.

The seniors who had been good all year were highly elated to learn, in a class meeting Thursday that they would be exempt from taking examinations at the end of the year. The main requirements for being exempt are: No unexcused absences and tardiness and no U's in the second semester or a falling down in quality of work done. The main business of the meeting was to select the pictures for the senior memory book. The pictures chosen are as follows: Football squad in uniform, band, senior members of the student council, senior lettermen, Honor Society, senior members of F.F.A. and Home Ec clubs, senior members of girls' league and boys' federation councils, senior play cast, senior members of girls' and boys' glee clubs and the faculty. Symbols of American Defense

Tractors for farm use and tanks for military forces are not only closely related mechanically but are both a factor in national defense these days. The tractor outfit at the top is carving out terraces used in many parts of the country to defend the soil against erosion. In the lower picture a small U. S. army tank is undergoing practice maneuvers. Although Oregon soils do not need terracing to the extent employed in some parts of the country, contour farming is gaining favor throughout the state, as are other practices to prevent erosion, which are encouraged by the AAA farm program. In the recent series of county meetings sponsored by the extension service, the protection of the soil was cited as a vital factor in gearing Oregon agriculture to national defense needs.
