

Some Profit in Cockerels Found In College Test

Under normal economic conditions operators who have ample brooding equipment and favorable market outlets may convert surplus leghorn cockerels into a marketable product at a small profit per bird. Such is the conclusion reached by representatives of the poultry and agricultural engineering departments of the Oregon experiment station, who have been conducting experiments on cockerel rearing at the request of Oregon poultrymen.

A new bulletin recording the results of the experiments and suggesting the most practical methods yet found for handling cockerels has just been issued, written by W. T. Cooney and F. E. Price. This bulletin, No. 386, is called "Surplus Leghorn Cockerels as Broilers."

One of the results of the experiment was the development of an O.S.C. broiler ration. Because Oregon produces a surplus of grain as well as a surplus of leghorn day-old cockerels, attempt was made to produce a satisfactory ration which would consist largely of bulk grains which could be fed separately at less cost than where all-mash feeds were used.

An O.S.C. broiler mash was developed which consists of a relatively fast growing ration containing an efficient balance of quality proteins that would permit the feeding of liberal amounts of lower priced grains. It was found that the best ration is the most efficient growing ration rather than a fattening one.

Tests were made with rearing broilers in batteries as well as on floors. The battery-reared leghorn broilers were approximately a week ahead of the floor-reared birds at eight weeks, and the battery-reared Rhode Island reds made more efficient gains than the leghorns for the same period.

The authors add that rearing broilers of any breed in commercial numbers with battery equipment is a hazardous undertaking unless housed in a well ceiling room where room temperature, ventilation, and humidity may be definitely controlled.

OREGON TO BE MIDWEST'S VACATION LAND.

The state of Oregon is going to see a great influx of middle west residents during 1941 as these people are looking more and more toward the Pacific Coast for their vacation trips according to Burt Vanderwarf, director of the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor Club, who was an Oregon visitor during the past week.

Vanderwarf made a personal tour of Oregon vacation spots which he inspected under the direction of the Oregon State Motor association. His organization directs more tourist travel from the middle west than any other

One of the most interesting members of Eddie Cantor's household is his man-of-all-work, Roy "Bunky" Arthur, formerly a vaudeville headliner as half of the team of Bedini and Arthur. Bunky gave the banjo-eyed comedian his first professional job, and when vaudeville folded, Eddie gave Bunky a job—without options.

which is a cellophane can holding the ball of yarn from which she knits her 34th sweater for "Bundles for Britain." Bess is star of the "Hilltop House" series on Columbia's network weekday afternoons.

Although several of Tommy Dorsey's musicians, heard on "Fame and Fortune" over the NBC-Blue network Thursday nights, were called for selective service, all were deferred for varigroup. "We have been very busy with inquiries regarding vacations already this year. From every indication Oregon and the Pacific Northwest is going to see a great many of these folks. Our trip out here will enable us to give a complete and first hand account of what is to be seen in Oregon and we can send many more people to your state," Vanderwarf said.

After seeing Oregon, Vanderwarf went north into the Olympic Peninsula and British Columbia before returning to Chicago.

Unit Furniture
The magicians haven't anything on some of the modern designers who plan furniture. Some of it can play music, serve you up refreshments, flip up a choice of games. But in a broader sense these trick talents of modern small-space furniture are of less practical importance than the unit design of the different pieces which makes it possible to fit them into any wall spaces you happen to have. If it's your destiny to move from time to time, this is a particularly satisfactory quality. You can get shelves, cabinets, desks, even tables and sofas that can be fitted together in various combinations.

New Hall Site for Dorena Grange Has Been Bought Recently

At the last meeting of the Dorena grange at the ladies club hall in Dorena, Loren Hunt of the Dorena Grange executive committee reported that a deal had been closed for the purchase of a new site for the Dorena Grange hall. The new site is located near the Layne farm at what is known as the Tarzan swimming hole. The purchase will include the swimming hole, enough ground for the picnic and ball ground and the hall.

At Thursday's meeting Claude Arne gave the report for the agricultural committee on the turkey and chicken outlook for the coming year. A. W. Hemenway reminded the farmers that there are only a few days remaining in which they may sign up for the soil conservation program.

Mrs. Augusta Vaughn gave a report for the home economics club, of the meeting which the club held recently with Mrs. Nettie Gawley as hostess. She also reported the home economics club cleared $23.51 on the banquet which they recently served at the Cottage Grove union high school for the Hi-Y boys. An announcement was made of the next serving committee who are Mr. and Mrs. Claude Arne, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Bales, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Bettis, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Williamson and Mrs. Hattie Bell. Miss Elsie Black reported for the YGA. Their next meeting will be held April 21 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Williamson; the YGA skating party will be held April 15 and the basket social which the group are sponsoring will be held at the Ladies' club hall at Dorena on April 10.

The grange voted to extend a vote of thanks to L. W. Coiner in appreciation for his work in surveying the land for the hall site.

During the lecturer's hour group singing was enjoyed. Mrs. Ethel Hunt, lecturer, read a newspaper article on working conditions and strikes in the United States. Lennie Holdersen, Lane county deputy, was the guest speaker, giving instructions on ritualistic and floor work and answered questions on it. Mrs. Fred Knox of the Spencer Creek grange, home economics chairman of Lane county, gave a talk. Mrs. Lennie Holdersen, Pomona grange secretary, gave a talk on the Pennsylvania plan. Fred Knox, fair manager, spoke of the progress being made in preparation of the next Lane county fair. The program for the next meeting which will be held April 17 will be in charge of the three Graces: Misses Elsie and Doris Black and Mrs. Margaret Wallace. They will be assisted by Mrs. Etta Finnerty.

Feeding Through Veins
An important new way to prolong life has recently been discovered. Food is now being given by vein to patients who cannot eat, because of excessive weakness at the time of an operation, or because the surgeon must cut some part of the alimentary tract, as in removing a tumor. Hospitals are already using the new method. It enables patients to survive digestive crises hitherto often fatal. A protein preparation, first tried out on rats, developed this method of feeding patients, according to experiments announced by Dr. Robert Elman and Dr. D. O. Weiner of the department of surgery, Washington university school of medicine.

CHRYSLER SALES BEGIN INCREASE.

According to figures made public by Charles L. Jacobsen, vice-president in charge of sales of the Chrysler Sales Division, Chrysler Corporation, retail deliveries of Chrysler cars in the week ended March 22 were the largest of the 1941 model year and the second largest in the company's history.

Deliveries represented an advance of 16.5 percent over the preceding week and 62 percent over the corresponding week of 1940. The popularity of Fluid Drive now available in all Chrysler cars is credited by Mr. Jacobsen with being an important factor in the current brisk demand. With one more week remaining, retail deliveries for March are sure to establish a new record for that month.
