These Serbian soldiers, registering with their Nazi captors in a Berlin radiophoto, close another chapter in stormy history of their oft-subjugated nation. Note that some of them are not in full uniform, indicating they were rushed into service.

Poppy Sales Aid to Disabled Veterans

Disabled veterans of the World War benefit in many ways from America's custom of wearing poppies in honor of the war dead on the Saturday before Memorial Day, according to Mrs. John Dunlevy, rehabilitation chairman of the local unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, who is directing the Auxiliary's work for the disabled men here.

Many hundreds of veterans in government hospitals and Auxiliary work-rooms throughout the country are given employment making poppies each year. This year more than 12,000,000 of the little red flowers have been produced by the disabled men and their earnings have amounted to approximately $120,000.

A vastly larger number of disabled veterans benefit from the poppies through the Legion and Auxiliary rehabilitation program, which poppy funds help finance. The aid which the veterans receive extends from postage stamps with which to write home to their families through the hospitals to technical and legal services in proving their claims for compensation, and includes every variety of help possible for the Legion and Auxiliary to extend.

Although the war is now more than 22 years in the past, the number of disabled veterans is still increasing, said Mrs. Dunlevy. "Injuries and exposure of war service are adding more veterans to the ranks of the disabled each year, as advancing age makes it more difficult for these men to carry on under their handicaps. Results of wounds and illnesses which could be carried in youth, become disabling when the burden of age is added. Difficulties of proving the war origin of these disabilities at this late date bar a great number of these men from government compensation. They look to the Legion and Auxiliary for aid, and the Legion and Auxiliary look to the poppy for necessary funds."

Uni High Beats C. G. Lions 2 to 1

Although John Minor, Lion chucker, held the Golden Tide hitless, they scored two runs on an error by McKibben in the first of the seventh inning which was enough to win the ball game from the Cottage Grove Lions here Tuesday.

In the first of the seventh with the bases loaded, Danner hit the ball but it bounced up and hit him making an automatic out. McKibben grabbed the ball and tagged Craiger coming from third, all this time Danner had continued to second not knowing he was out and McKibben tried to throw him out at second but he made a bad peg and Harbert and Switzer scored. Lomax then grounded out to retire the side, shrouded to first. When the Lions came up in their half of the seventh Kiang got to the initial base on an error by Hogan, Elfvig, pinch hitting for Reed, got on but was caught off the base for the first out, Dugan then fled out to rightfielder, advancing Kiang to third. Wicks got on on another error by Hogan and Kiang scored, letting Wicks advance to third, this brought Suiter to bat and with two down, he hit a long fly to the rightfielder which looked as if it was going over his head but he reached up and brought it down to end the ball game.

Minor, Lion chucker, allowed no hits, he issued 8 walks and struck out seven men. The Lions got only three hits, one each by McKibben, Kiang and Suiter. The batteries were: Uni High: Danner, Switzer and Craiger; Cottage Grove: Minor and McKibben.
