

Features of Lamb Show to Be Given Over KOAC 17th

The KOAC radio station at Corvallis will broadcast features of the Junction City Lamb Show Saturday afternoon, May 17, starting at 1 p. m. Burton Hutton, director of agriculture programs at KOAC, will be in charge of the broadcast. Other features of the show will start at 9 in the morning, when the 4-H and F.F.A. judging contest will start. The judging of the lamb classes which will include classes for medium and long wool, single and pens of three fat lambs, and also a separate class for Shropshire lambs will start at 10 with O. M. Nelson, professor of animal husbandry at O.S.C. and Claude Steusloff, Valley Packing Co., Salem, as the official judges.

The afternoon program will feature Godfrey Priddy, manager of Glenwood Farms, Portland, putting on a dog-working demonstration. This will be the concluding feature of the day's program and will be held at the ball park. Just prior to that there will be a drawing for the choice cuts of spring lamb.

A total budget of $325 has been made out for the show, over $200 of which will go for prizes. A machinery exhibit will be featured this year in order to give the public more to look at at the time of the show. Exhibitors are welcome from all parts of Linn, Lane and Benton counties and there are classes for all kinds of lambs for both open, 4-H, and F.F.A. members.

The Lamb Show is sponsored by the Junction City Lions Club with the cooperation of the city merchants and the Lane county fair association.

Don Hill, left, and Arthur L. Mottet, forest products researchers for the West Coast Lumbermen's Association, have reason to whistle while they work. Three years of experimenting in the chemical seasoning of Douglas fir have produced real results that now enable lumber mills to meet special Army demands for ponton timbers with precision and without waste. Hill is pointing out a check in a non-treated timber after kiln drying. Beside it stands a chemically treated timber, also kiln dried, but free of checks or splits.

Fur Farming Now Is Large Industry Over the State

Fur-farming in Oregon has been accounting for an annual income of more than a half million dollars and is increasing in importance despite declining pelt prices and large imports, according to a report in the April issue of the agricultural situation and outlook released by the Oregon State college extension service. More than 600 different fur farms are now operating in Oregon.

Most of the recent development in raising fur-bearing animals in captivity has come through the expansion of the mink industry in the lower Columbia and coast counties. Many mink farms are also now found in the Willamette valley and several large units are located in eastern Oregon. Silver fox operation has been curtailed to some extent during the past five years.

Prices for the two most important products, mink and fox pelts, declined between 1936 and 1939 but improved in 1940. Ranch-raised mink pelts taken last season brought Oregon farmers an average of about $12 each compared to $9.60 in 1939 and $20 each in 1936. Silver fox pelt prices in 1940 were about 20 per cent above the 1939 average of $26 each after declining from $40 in 1936.

Imports of mink pelts have been large and are increasing but exports declined last year. Returns from Oregon's ranch-raised mink are only about one-tenth the value of imports. Nearly 150,000 silver fox pelts valued at two and one-half million dollars came into this country during the 1939-1940 season but imports are now on a quota basis.

Karakul sheep are among the newer fur-bearers on Oregon farms. Large imports and moderate to low prices for the lamb-skin fur are against the profitable development of the karakul sheep industry in this country, according to the report.

A few nutria or South American beaver, skunk, muskrat, and fitch are being kept in this state, but none of these animals is important economically in the Oregon fur farming enterprise at present.

The complete report is available at county agent offices.

BLUE MOUNTAIN 4-K COOKING CLUB ENTERTAINS MOTHERS.

The 4-H Cooking club held a party for their mothers and teachers recently at the home of the leader, Mrs. Violet Duerst. A regular business meeting was held and the following program given: Piano and guitar duet by Mrs. Duerst and daughter Betty; a demonstration "A Balanced Breakfast," by division I cooking class; poem, "Feeding Threshers" by Angela Nelson; demonstration "A Good Supper," by division II cooking class; piano solo by Neta Anderson; talk "Our Club" by Wilma Harris; "A Talk on Club Work" by the leader.

Lunch was served by the foods committee. Chairmen for the different committees were: Social, Anna Blackmore; foods, Angela Nelson and Wilma Harris; decorative, Colleen McCoy; program, Neta Anderson.

Among the decorations was a floral piece, the 4-H emblem, decorated with green leaves and flowers.

The following were present: Mrs. Sig Nelson and daughters, Angela and Gloria; Mrs. Iona McCoy and daughter Colleen; Mrs. Lucile Reams and daughter Cora; Mrs. Kenneth Bennet and daughter Barbara; Mrs. Duerst and daughter Betty; Neta Anderson, Wilma and Ruth Harris, and the teachers, Miss Veda Grey and Miss Phyllis Rankin. A surprise gift of a pyrex baking dish was presented Mrs. Duerst by the club members.

PLANS LAID FOR MARKETING QUOTA REFERENDUM.

A series of county meetings to explain the provisions of the national referendum on wheat quotas were scheduled throughout Oregon from May 12 to 17 by the state office of the AAA. County and community committeemen will take the information obtained from state officers at these meetings and will pass it on to wheat farmers in general at community meetings to be held between now and the referendum date, May 31.

Approval of the wheat quotas proclaimed on May 10 by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, in accordance with the 1938 law, is vital to the future welfare of Oregon commercial wheat growers, believes Will Steen, Umatilla county farmer and chairman of the state committee. Unless the marketing quota plan is approved by two-thirds of those voting, the government loan program will be discontinued. Under the quota plan any grower who has stayed within his wheat allotment under the AAA program can market his crop the same as usual with no restriction.

Polling places for the referendum will be arranged by each county committee.

F.F.A. JUDGING CONTEST.

A special feature of the Junction City Fat Lamb show has been announced by the committee in charge of the arrangements for this year.

For the first time there will be judging contest for 4-H club members and members of the F.F.A. Contestants will be required to judge three classes of lambs, and the contest will start at 9:00 a. m. Maurice Buchanan and R. C. Kuehner will be in charge of the contest.

Mrs. Alt. Kelly returned to Portland for a visit with the Earl Richards family, who were here for the Ball's family reunion Sunday. Mrs. Richards and Mrs. Kelly are sisters.

★ 29 MILLION!

A record never before approached!

★When the 29,000,000th Ford rolled recently from the assembly line, an all-time record for the industry was set. 29,000,000 units built by the same management and all bearing one name—a name that has become one of the best-known trade-marks in the world!

It is significant that this achievement comes at a time when our country is making a mighty effort to re-arm swiftly. For to further that effort, to help speed it along in any possible way, we have offered the vast facilities of the Rouge Plant and every ounce of our experience.

As you read this, a new $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine plant, started only last fall, is nearly completed. A new magnesium alloy plant, one of the few in the country, is already in production on lightweight airplane engine castings. Work is right now under way on a new $18,000,000 plant for mass production of big bomber assemblies. Orders have been filled for military vehicles of several types, including army reconnaissance cars, staff cars and bomb service trucks.

In the midst of this activity for National Defense, building the 29 millionth Ford car is simply one part of the day's work.

The public has acclaimed the 1941 Ford car as the finest in Ford history. Ford Dealers are enjoying their greatest sales and expecting their best year since 1937.

It is good to be producing the things America needs, and to be setting records on the way!
