Motorloggers Preview 'Dream' Highway Down Wilson River to Tillamook Region

This is one of a series of motorloggers, condensed from The Oregonian, recounting trips to interesting parts of the Pacific Northwest made in co-operation with the Oregon State Motor Association. The complete article will appear in The Oregonian Sunday magazine June 15.

BY FRED W. COLVIG
Staff Writer, The Oregonian

This is in the nature of a summer tradition—a progress report on the Wilson river highway linking inland Oregon and the Tillamook country. And this is probably the last year it will be necessary.

For after ten years of disappointing setbacks the fast new trunk route to the coast is so near completion that highway officials are almost certain of the exact opening date—Labor day.

Even today, with 11 miles of the road remaining to be surfaced, a motorist—equipped with a hard-earned pass—can skim the 77 miles between Portland and Tillamook in little more than an hour and a half's driving time. He won't have to break the law or the dictates of safety to do it, either. We know, because we just did it in a preview of the route.

Trip One of Series

We cruised the new highway in the white travel car of the Oregon State Motor association in one of The Oregonian's summer series of motorlog tours.

Driving eastward from Glenwood, where the new highway takes off from the old Gale's creek road, west of Forest Grove, we rolled forth on a "dream" highway banked and graded to "railroad" specifications, with no grade steeper than 5 per cent and no curve sharper than 10 degrees. Almost every foot of it is "mile-a-minute" highway.

The motorloggers stopped on a graded section of the highway to "kibitz" WPA workers leveling the crushed surfacing rock.

Briefly, here is how we found construction within three months of the completion date:

Surfaced and open to public travel—29 miles from Tillamook east to Camp McNamers. Minor work on this stretch remaining to be done includes curve-straightening and widening on the old state road between Tillamook and Mills bridge, six miles east.

Graded and ready for surfacing (with the exception of one nearly completed cut and one long fill)—10.8 miles from Camp McNamers to Glenwood.

Being graded—three miles of new construction between Glenwood and Washburn on the old Gale's creek road, a project designed to unbend several dangerous highway elbows.

Completion Due Soon

All this, we were assured by Superintendent O. G. McIntyre, will be completed by the first week in September.

There is irony in the story of this Wilson River highway, irony in the gray-black snags that border 30 of the 40 miles between Glenwood and Tillamook.

Ten years ago, when a paved highway to link Portland and Tillamook was still a dream, The Oregonian noted regretfully that hard pavement and automobiles were to invade one of the last great expanses of primeval wonderland.

Well, a greater destroyer of wonderlands than ax or shovel beat the road builders to the Wilson river country—the great fire of 1933—and the virgin timberland is now a ghost forest. There are gashes on the green mountainside where the road builders have left their mark, but grass, maple, salal and other native brush will soon heal them.

But it will be generations before Wilson river sees another forest like the one fire ravished.

Black line shows completed section of the new Wilson River highway, broken line the part to be finished by fall. The new road cuts 30 miles from inland Oregon-Tillamook journey. Dotted line shows eventual "by-pass" route.

Two Lane Objectors Sent to Calif. Camp

Two conscientious objectors, Oliver Wendell Petty of Creswell and Boyd E. Decker of Cottage Grove, have been sent to San Damos Camp near Glendora, California, June 23, after being inducted into the non-combatant service. The Lane county selective service board announced at Eugene Tuesday. The two men were opposed to military service.

EMPLOYERS CAN SAVE.

SALEM.—Firms employing eight or more workers and which still owe state unemployment taxes for 1940 can save 81 per cent of their federal excise tax by paying contributions before June 30, Administrator Silas Gaiser announced today.

The federal tax offset is 90 per cent if paid in January, the administrator pointed out, but only nine-tenths of this is allowed if payment is completed during the first half of the year. After June 30 delinquent employers will be liable for the entire amount, making almost a double tax of 3 per cent plus 2.7 per cent for the one year.

The State Unemployment Compensation Commission is notifying all employers whose records indicate incomplete tax payments on last year's payrolls. The percentage of delinquency is much lower than last year, showing improved business conditions, officials declare.

Delight Valley

The Social Neighbors club met June 11 at the home of Mrs. Rudolf Hansen. Miss Katherine Wright and Miss Margaret Knudson were present. The hostess, Mrs. Rudolf Hansen, was assisted by Ruth Childers and Esther and Marie Hansen in serving the refreshments.

Robirda and Bird Flaten spent the past week visiting relatives in Hubbard.

Werner Von Allaman of Grants Pass was a Sunday evening guest at the John Stalder home.

Norman Myers, who is employed at Hadleyville, spent Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hathaway attended the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wearin of Creswell, Thursday evening.

Mrs. M. A. Horn, Mrs. Francis Horn and son Kirk made a business trip to Portland Monday and returned Tuesday.

Sunday guests at the C. H. Haight home were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Paul and son Gene, and Elsie Haight of Eugene and Mrs. Reginald Haight and son Eric of Camas, Washington.

At the annual school election Clyde Davidson was reelected director for three years, and Mrs. John Stalder for clerk for one year. Miss Rose of Ashland has been employed to teach the primary grades for the next term.

Mrs. Reginald Haight and son Eric of Camas, Washington, and Elsie Haight of Eugene spent three days last week at the C. H. Haight home.

CITY COURT

Three paid fines in the city court the past week on various charges. Forest Cox paid a $10 fine on charge of using indecent language on the street. Merle Abeene was fined $10 on charge of disorderly conduct. Alex Bailey was fined $10 on charge of drunkenness.

The following were given traffic tickets: G. T. Calhoun, Warren Cooper, Mrs. Ed Leum, Bob Ross, L. C. Duncan, Charles Shanda, and Charles Young.

The northwest lumber strikers were back on the job in western Washington Monday after a voting of 30-1 in favor of a strike ending proposal.
