Farm Prices Up As Good Harvest Prospects Loom

The old rule of big crops bringing low prices is apparently not holding good this year. Although crop prospects in the country as a whole are as favorable as during the last three years, which were good seasons, further gains have been made in the general farm price level, according to a report on the agricultural situation just issued by the agricultural extension service at O.S.C. Gains in industrial workers' incomes have strengthened domestic demand, while a moderate increase has occurred in exports owing to the lease-lend program.

The gain in foreign demand for farm products is only moderate and mostly for big products, some dairy and poultry products, and some specialty crops. The general export outlook remains poor as no market increase in exports of wheat, fresh fruits, or cotton is expected.

The income of industrial workers is already about 20 per cent higher than the 1940 average, the report says, and the Oregon farm price index shows a similar percentage gain in the general farm price level. The greatest gains have been in prices for meats and wool, truck crops, and poultry and dairy products which respond promptly in price to changes in consumer purchasing power.

Farm costs have increased only moderately during the past year, compared with prices for farm products in general. As a result, the purchasing power of farm products is higher than a year ago. The exchange value of some items is above or near parity, particularly the "domestic-type" products. The exchange value of most of the "export-type" farm products is still below parity owing to surpluses in relation to market demand, and relatively high prices for some items of farm expense.

On the whole, the exchange value of farm products is now around 90 per cent of the 1910-1914 parity. Relatively low prices for grain, fruit, cotton, and some other farm products account for some of the disparity which remains. The remaining disparity is also accounted for partly by relatively high price indexes for farm machinery and building materials, with higher taxes and farm wage rates also affecting farm costs.

Eugene, July 3, (Special)—Harley Harms, Cottage Grove horseman will have several entries in the two day horse race meeting to be held here at the Lane county fairgrounds Friday and Saturday afternoons—part of the Fourth-of-July celebration to be sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Harms' horses will compete against a stellar field of some 60 entries, many California horses enroute to Longacres track in Seattle. The races, which will be held each day starting at 2 p. m., will include pari-mutuel wagering. Besides the five running events each afternoon, three harness heats will be held for the some 20 Oregon and Washington trotters and pacers entered in the meet.

Midget auto racing, by Bobby Rowe's 25 Oregon Midget racing association drivers, will be held Friday night with time trials scheduled to get under way at 7 p. m. The heavy-footed pilots will be competing in a regular association meet with the points counting on the Pacific northwest championship competition.

The free fireworks display, expected to be even more spectacular than the show that attracted some 10,000 spectators, will be presented immediately following the midget races, at approximately 9:15 o'clock.

Mike Moriarity, chairman of the week end celebration, hopes the Veterans have arranged a program attractive enough to keep Lane county residents within the county boundaries and off the traffic congested highways as much as possible during the holiday.

They squeeze Petroleum to get better orange juice

In orange groves, a gas is "injected" into irrigation water and carried to the roots of the trees to make bigger, sweeter, juicier oranges. Because scientists at the "University of Petroleum," Shell's $3,500,000 research laboratories, "squeezed" a petroleum gas and got hydrogen. This they combined with nitrogen to make excellent fertilizer (Shell NH₂).

Simple? Hardly that. Nor was it simple to combine the right molecules from petroleum and make synthetic rubber, glycerine, explosives—or the new Solutized Shell Gasoline.

Try a tankful of research genius...

NEW Solutized SHELL

Two scientific factors advance the Road Performance Rating of the new Shell Gasoline to an all-time high:

1. It is refined with the Solutizer Process (Shell research laboratories' Patent No. 2,149,379). This steps up performance by removing the "pro-knock mercaptans."

2. Thermal conversion makes it extra rich in iso-compounds similar to iso-octane—first produced commercially by Shell scientists to give America 100-octane aviation gasoline.

Your Shell dealer now has new Solutized Shell (at regular price) and Shell Premium—try a tankful today!
