ASK EXTENSION OF DRAFT. Declaring that America was in "infinitely greater" danger than a year ago, President Roosevelt asked congress Monday to authorize extension of the one-year period of active service in the army of selectees, national guardsmen and reservists.

Unless the extension is granted, Mr. Roosevelt said, the nation will be taking a grave national risk and disintegration of the army will be under way within two months.

Responsibility for maintaining the efficiency of that army, the chief executive said in a message to congress, rests solely with the legislators.

Motorloggers Ascend Most Spectacular Hole On Continent, Hell's Canyon of Snake River

THIS IS ONE OF a series of motorloggers, describing journeys to scenic and recreational areas of the Northwest, made through cooperation of The Oregonian and the Oregon State Motor association. The complete article will appear in the Sunday magazine of The Oregonian.

BY RICHARD L. NEUBERGER

Special Writer, The Oregonian

The most extraordinary mail route in the United States twists 95 spectacular miles up the immense chasm of the Snake river from Lewiston, Idaho, penetrating the heart of the American wilderness. There is no other mail route like it.

Every Friday morning an adventurous 32-year-old Irish river-runner named Kyle McGrady pilots his flat-bottomed diesel boat Idaho into the core of Hell's canyon, deepest abyss on the continent, and brings to several hundred scattered men and women their solitary contact with the outside world.

Area Little Known

Hell's canyon is one of the least-known wonders of the nation. Although considerably deeper than any other gorge in North America, its picturesque scenery and people have gone largely unnoticed. Yet this region can be visited in three ways—by boat, by car and by trail.

Oregonian-AAA Motorloggers combined all three methods. The trip began and ended in the familiar white car, but in between we traveled in forest service rigs, on foot and of course on Kyle McGrady's boat.

This sort of journey to Hell's canyon can be made in four days by virtually anyone who reads this article.

Travelers on the Idaho must bring along their own food and bedding. The Snake's surging torrent is so swift that the trip upstream requires 20 hours and that coming back only 6 1/2 hours.

The little towns near Lewiston soon were left behind. The road along the river straggled off into rocks and sagebrush.

We passed the last telephone poles. The banks of the Snake straightened into hills, and presently the hills stiffened into crags. Like a frayed carpet, civilization on the shore gradually disappeared and blended into the fastnesses. A thin trail replaced both highway and railroad track along the bank.

From Johnson's bar, where boiling water barred farther ascent, we climbed to Hat point. From the summit we looked out over one of the most remarkable spectacles in the nation.

Peaks Like Hobgoblins

Directly across the chasm the seven serrated peaks of the Seven Devils loom up like stupendous hobgoblins. They surmount a vast stack of hills and cliffs. Far below, Hell's canyon is so deep that it seems filled with a blue haze like some painting by Maxfield Parrish.

The Snake river, carrying more water than the Rio Grande and nearly as large as the Columbia itself, is a thin strip. Mountains and bluffs all bend in tribute to the immense declivity, their shoulders forming a huge V-shaped trench. The scene is so wild and awesome that the entire earth appears to be buckled and wrinkled beyond repair.

The best way for motorists to reach the chasm is on the road which goes from Enterprise, county seat of Walla Walla county, to the little settlement of Imnaha. From Imnaha a forest service grade twists like a dragon up the wall of the canyon of the Imnaha river and then goes up the ridge to Hat point. It is 40 miles from Enterprise to Imnaha, and another 24 miles from Imnaha to the rim of Hell's canyon.

NORRIS RECOMMENDS BONUS FOR VOLUNTEERS. Senator George W. Norris, (I. Neb.) suggested, Saturday at Washington that a bonus be given selectees who volunteer for army service beyond one year.

He made the proposal as congress considered a war department recommendation to retain selectees, national guardsmen and reservists in service for the duration of the emergency.

MANY BREEDERS TO SEND RAMS TO ALBANY AUCTION. Most of the purebred sheep breeders of western Oregon will be represented among some 38 consignors of rams to the first Willamette valley purebred ram sale to be held in Albany Friday, August 1, reports O. E. Mikesell, Albany, secretary.

FLAX HARVESTING STARTED. Harvesting of approximately 900 acres of flax began in the Willamette valley in the neighborhood of St. Paul last week end with tons of ripe, yellow flax being hauled daily to the recently-completed storage sheds at the St. Paul Flax Grower's plant, one mile west of St. Paul and about six miles south of Newberg.

Pulling and hauling of the local acreage of flax will continue for at least another three weeks, according to the flax co-op.

Prospects of a record flax crop in the St. Paul area are good. Increased acreage and better production give promise this year of returns to the growers which will be greater than at any time in the past.—Newberg Graphic.

There is nothing more refreshing than peach ice cream at this season of the year. Gustafson's of course. 50-1tc-4i
