BIGGER SHARE OF ROAD MONEY. PORTLAND—Senator McNary said Saturday as he prepared to fly back to Washington, D. C., that Oregon would probably get more money for strategic military highways under a new bill than it would have under the measure vetoed by the president.

The veto was based on objection to allocation of money on population rather than military need. The senator said that on the basis of strategic highway requirements, Oregon would probably get a bigger share.

Want to reduce? Of course you do if you can do it safely. Fats and frank diets may cause great harm and nervousness by depriving your glands and nerves of natural vitamins which they need. Reduce the Vitamall way. Take the Juice of a lemon with Natura Calcium Compound to neutralize the acid. 3 times daily. Take two tea-spoonfuls of Vitamall every 3 hours in place of food. Many report the loss of 10 pounds in 5 days and say that they feel better than they have for years. It is not laxative. Does not contain thyroid nor any other reducing substance. Vitamall is simply a sustaining tonic containing natural vitamins. You can look forward to wearing your normal size smart clothes again. If you are lonesome for your meals the first day or two, take a beef cube in boiling water twice daily. You may also eat 6 or 8 stalks of celery.

246 STATE PRISON INMATES PAROLED.

SALEM.—The state parole board said in its annual report last week that it released 246 state prison convicts during the year ended June 30, while it studied cases of 1010 inmates.

Forty-nine paroles, or eight per cent of those granted, were revoked because the parolees violated terms of their paroles. The board said this was a low average.

Jobs were obtained for 250 of the released prisoners, 151 by the board and 99 by the men themselves.

The board now has 561 parolees under its supervision.

New procedures for payment of partial benefits to those not fully employed were put into effect during July by the Unemployment Compensation Commission. Because such claims will require special handling in our employment offices, the following general information is important to workers.

A worker is partially unemployed when he works less than full-time for his regular employer and earns less than his weekly benefit amount, due to lack of work. Four conditions must be met:

- 1. Less than normal full-time work for that individual.
2. Continuous attachment to a regular employer for a considerable period.
3. Availability for customary full-time hours if offered.
4. Earnings less than $15 or weekly benefit amount.

Covered employers have been given the responsibility of issuing written notice of possible eligibility for partial unemployment benefits. This notice is for use of the worker in filing a claim at the nearest employment office.

Unless such workers become totally unemployed, they are not required to register for work. They must, however, be available for full-time work with their regular employer. Waiting weeks may be served alike by those totally or partially unemployed.

After benefits have been determined and made known to the claimant, the employer is asked to use an approved form to notify the under-employed worker of the weeks for which he is eligible for partial benefits. Properly filled out, this form may be used by the worker in continuing his claim at the employment office.

Four weeks is allowed the worker in which to present this claim. The form must be verified by the employer. It may be sent in by mail. The calendar week should be used if it corresponds to the payroll week; if not, the week within which most of the days fall.

Example: Worker normally earns $25 a week. Partially employed at $11 a week. Weekly benefit amount $15 (6% of high quarter pay in base year). Partial benefits are $15 less $11 plus $2 (earnings allowed by law), or $6. Total income during week of partial unemployment $11 plus $6 or $17.

Every employe should become familiar with these new procedures concerning partial unemployment benefits. If he believes he is eligible under the law and has not been so notified by his employer, he should consult the nearest employment office for instructions. He may file his initial claim at any time. He also will be told fully of his rights and responsibilities in the follow-up process.

Retrieving a Letter What would you do if you had mailed a letter and it was a matter of life or death that you intercept that letter before it reaches its destination? Most persons wouldn't know. But that letter can be intercepted if there is time. One simply goes to the post office, fills out a certain form, pays for a wire which is sent to the post office destination of the letter, and in a few days a notice arrives informing you to call at local headquarters for your letter.
