JUNEAU SET FOR POTLATCH

The city of Juneau is all set to "potlatch" a $1,000 silver service for the new cruiser named after the Alaska capital and scheduled for launching on October 7.

According to Mayor Harry I. Lucas, the silver service to be presented will include punch bowl, ladle, tray, cups, candlesticks and other pieces. Presentation of a silver service to a Navy ship by the city for which she is named is traditional.

The "Juneau" is being constructed at the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, Kearney, New Jersey. She is one of eight ships which the Navy designates as the "Atlanta Class of 1938-40," new medium-sized types to operate as flotilla flagships. They will be the Navy's fastest cruisers and its smallest since the "Scouts" of 1905.

THINGS TO WATCH FOR.

Newspaper ads by Woolworth, the big five-and-dime folks, for the first time—a test campaign on same in Utica, N.Y., turned up convincing results. . . Advertising billboards which feature the flashing, to a passing auto, of that auto's exact miles-per-hour—a couple of electric eyes are so placed as to measure, calculate and flash, all in a twinkling! . . . Soap that comes in paper thin rolls, so that each user can team off a small, individual sheet for himself. . . Cigarettes that come packaged in a rigid, crush-protection transparent plastic case—the stiff plastic case is in place of the customary cellophane wrapper. . . Also in the plastic line, a molded sandal for women—a feature being that it expands with the heat of the foot (because the foot expands then, too).

Shell Oil Co. Aids Getting Maximum Results for Cars

With special efforts being made to get maximum, economical performance from passenger automobiles, more importance is being placed upon the fact that the compression ratio of an engine increases with mileage, due to carbon deposits.

Unfortunately, these deposits cannot be avoided and they decrease the size of the combustion chamber and increase the compression ratio of the air-fuel mixture beyond the original design of the engine.

Recent tests show that even within the first 10,000 miles (an average year's mileage), compression ratio increases, due to carbon, may be sufficient to cause knocking, sluggishness and over-heating.

"A series of advertisements to acquaint motorists with these facts is now being released by Shell Oil Company, Incorporated," it was said here today by Shell's local manager, R. F. Sunderland.

"One way to overcome loss of engine performance due to these compression increases, is to retard the spark. But that causes loss of power. Another, but expensive way, is to remove the carbon."

"To compensate for these carbon created high compressions, Shell has developed a special type of gasoline, Shell Premium, which will give maximum, knock-free power in the highest compression that today's engines develop. It is made from clean-burning gasoline fractions and contains a patented anti-knock fluid. In addition, it contains powerful alkylate, similar to that used in 100-octane aviation gasoline. In new cars or old, Shell Premium Gasoline gives quicker startability and warm-up, as well as cooler running and excellent mileage."

Important TO YOU OWNERS OF HIGH-COMPRESSION CARS

Even if your car has gone less than 10,000 miles, it now may have higher compression than when it left the factory — may knock because of this!

UNFORTUNATE, BUT TRUE! There is, today, no known way to keep the compression ratio of your motor from changing constantly.

The reason for this is carbon, which accumulates inside today's compact combustion chambers, making them smaller — and your high compression higher than ever. This causes knocking.

You cannot avoid such carbon completely, regardless of what kind of gasoline or oil you use. You can keep removing it, of course, at some expense. You may even get temporary relief by changing the spark adjustment, thereby cutting down your engine's efficiency.

But Shell scientists have a better answer. They've developed a motor fuel that will automatically compensate for these carbon-created higher compressions.

This super motor fuel — Shell Premium — is a blend of clean-burning gasoline fractions... a patented, scientifically prepared anti-knock compound . . . and powerful alkylate (similar to that used in 100-octane aviation fuels). And what this means to you is more miles of new-car performance.

It means a quieter, cooler running engine . . . faster and smoother pick-up . . . excellent mileage. And you get all this from Shell Premium for 2¢ more than "regular" — or just about $1 a month extra, if you drive the average amount.
