One of first refugees from U. S.-Japan war to reach America is Mrs. R. K. Worthington of Philadelphia, shown on arrival in San Francisco on Pan American Clipper. She came from Honolulu.

State Champions Named at Fifth OSC Corn Show

Gerald Cox of Route 2, Albany, is the new sweepstakes champion corn grower of Oregon as a result of winning out in stiff competition at the fifth annual state corn show held at Oregon State college. Cox succeeds Clayton Nyberg of Tulatin, last year's sweepstakes winner.

Corn displayed at this year's show was of exceptionally high quality, despite the fact that this was a rather poor year for field corn production in some parts of the state, according to the judges. Almost as many exhibits were in as were shown last year, even though the state show was revived hurriedly after having been once abandoned.

C. I. Sersano, chairman of the agricultural committee of the Portland chamber of commerce and donor of the sweepstakes trophy, announced that he was certain that Portland business men would continue to join with Oregon farm organizations and Oregon State college in backing the state show.

C. A. Marsh of Albany, twice previously state corn husking champion, won this honor for the third time and took permanent possession of the trophy. Following are the winners in the various classes and districts:

Open class champion—Harvey Freitag, Albany, who was winner in district 2; Katie Lucht, Molalla, first place, district 1; Azola Weaver, Canyonville, first place, district 3.

Hybrid class—Gerald Cox, class champion and winner of district 2; Bernard Seus, Hillsboro, winner, district 1; H. B. Wilcoxon, Willow Creek, first place, district 3.

Hybrid yield contest—F. S. Green, Stanfield, champion, 119 bushels per acre; C. W. Edwards, Junction City, winner district 1, 85.9 bushels per acre.

Four-H class—Allvin Heard, Lookingglass, champion and district 3 winner; James Kincheloe, Beaverton, first place, district 1; Walter Bidwell, Albany, first place, district 2.

FFA class—Jack Heinz, Canby, champion, and winner district 1; Everett Zeller, Albany, first place, district 2; Bernard Ingle, Ontario, first place, district 3.
