

1942 Lbr. Output Sets New Record

SEATTLE, WASHINGTON—The weekly average of West Coast lumber production in 1942 was 168,327,000 board feet, in comparison with weekly production average of 166,232,000 b.f. for 1941. Weekly average of production in December (5 weeks) was 118,316,000 board feet, or 61.3 per cent of estimated capacity. Orders averaged 141,535,000 b.f.; shipments, 139,966,000. Weekly averages for November were: Production 154,450,000 b.f. (78.4 per cent of the 1926-1929 average); orders, 166,226,000; shipments, 152,715,000.

52 weeks of 1942, cumulative production, 8,752,998,000 b.f.; 53 weeks, 1941—8,810,311,000; 52 weeks, 1940—7,396,660,000.

Orders for 52 weeks of 1942 break down as follows: rail, 7,170,518,000 b.f.; domestic cargo, 944,455,000; export, 185,540,000; local, 1,347,221,000.

The industry's unfilled order file stood at 1,056,789,000 b.f. at the end of December; gross stocks, at 497,172,000.

Although 1941 was a 53-week year, in terms of work days, and 1942 a 52-week year, the West Coast lumber industry produced practically as much lumber last year as in 1941. In average weekly production, notwithstanding manpower shortage, the industry bettered the 1941 average by 1.3 per cent. This is a record unmatched by any other lumber producing region.

The end of 1942 saw war plant construction—cantonnments, warehouses, etc.—go over the peak. Looking ahead, the prospect is that requirements of all lumber construction, under limitations on civilian building, will decline from now on to the end of 1943, particularly after the second quarter of the year. There is no prospect, however, of decline in requirements for special war items such as airplane lumber, decking, and structural timbers. Demand for these items may increase, and supply will be a special obligation of the West Coast industry. Further increase of requirements for box and crating lumber is in view. It is evident that for many months ahead, all the war lumber items that West Coast mills can produce will be required.

Under various controls on West Coast lumber, as established by the War Production Board, the war agencies are given first call on the industry's product. The volume released for requirements that are not direct military needs—for railroad, mine, highway and related types of construction—is running close to one-half of the industry's production. This proportion is more likely to increase than to diminish, for two reasons. The war agencies do not require all of the industry's production of yard items of building lumber. There is growing recognition by the agencies of the necessity of providing for essential civilian uses, such as by railroads, mines, highway construction, defense housing, and farm building that is vital to food production.

A strikingly effective job has been done in meeting critical war needs for lumber items that only the West Coast lumber industry can supply, through commonsense, localized administration of the WPB "freeze" order on Douglas fir lumber. One tough problem after another has been worked out by practical methods, with effective results for the national war effort. The whole picture represents government and business working out application of war controls on a basis of real facts and actual needs, with results which highlight this cooperative effort as the country's most successful example of war administration.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Weeldreyer arrived in Cottage Grove on January 14 after a very pleasant trip of 2664 miles from Donna Texas. They extend an invitation to their many friends to call at their home, 620 Adams avenue.

Death Calls R. J. Hendricks, Salem Newspaper Man

Death called R. J. Hendricks, 79, editor emeritus of the Oregon Statesman at Salem and widely known newspaper man. Mr. Hendricks, brother of J. R. Hendricks of Cottage Grove, died at the home of a son, Paul R. Hendricks, Salem attorney, after an illness of five weeks from pneumonia. He was an old time printer, learning the newspaper trade from printer's devil up and had served on papers at Eugene and Roseburg before going to Salem in 1884 where he purchased the Statesman with George R. Snaubert. He sold his interest in the Statesman in 1928, but continued as editor emeritus and columnist.

For a time he also served as superintendent of the reform school near Salem and as appraiser of customs in the Portland custom office.

Surviving in addition to the one son, are two brothers, John Ray Hendricks of Cottage Grove, and Hamilton R. Hendricks of Fossil. Funeral services will be held today at the Clough Barrick chapel in Salem and interment will be in the Odd Fellow cemetery there.

ADULT CLOTHING CLASS FEBRUARY 2

Retreading the wardrobe or Sew and Save will be the theme for the adult clothing class which will meet for the first time Tuesday, February 2, at 7:30 p. m. in the Jefferson school under the supervision of Margaret Stevenson, high school homemaking instructor. The class is sponsored by the union high school district and the state department of vocational education.

All women interested are urged to attend this class which will meet weekly for two hour sessions for ten weeks. There is no charge. Instruction will be given in all phases of clothing construction, designed to help a beginner or an advanced seamstress. Each class member may construct a garment during this time and will be given individual help. Work will also be done on care and repair of clothing as well as remodeling. Class members may decide which lessons will be of the most benefit to them.

How to choose correct lines and colors for the individual will be discussed at the first meeting along with the organization of the class.

OPA ISSUES AN EDIT: NO STICKERS, NO GAS

No sticker on the windshield—no gasoline.

This was the effect of an order issued by OPA to all retail gasoline dealers on the Pacific Coast.

The notice emphasized an existing regulation that the service station operator must "check the windshield sticker on the vehicle" before filling a motorist's tank.

The stickers must be attached to the windshield, not in the glove compartment or the driver's wallet.

OPA also pointed out that the bottom portion of the "C" stickers, designating the reason for eligibility, must also be displayed.

Both are at BATTLE STATIONS

BATTLES these days are fought in the air, on sea, on land—and with the help of the Nation's communication lines.

Operators, handling the greatest volume of calls in the telephone's history—calls dealing largely with war and war production—occupy a "battle station" of vital importance.

You can help them to bring Victory closer. Though materials for more telephone lines are not available, due to war's requirements, you can help keep the lines clear for war by making only vital calls to the war-busy centers.

Your cooperation helps us to serve you and our Country. We deeply appreciate it.
