BUSES MOBILIZED FOR WAR DUTY

Motor Bus Reserve in training

In case of an emergency requiring mass troop transport to threatened points on the Pacific Coast, the Motor Bus Reserve would spring into action as an auxiliary of the regular army. Fleets of swift, streamlined motor buses, operated by personnel already trained in troop transport, would be immediately available to move thousands of soldiers quickly and efficiently.

Pacific Greyhound Lines has organized a number of Motor Bus Reserve units to serve the important military and population centers of the Coast. A unit is composed of 55 drivers and officers, 24 buses, 3 reserve buses, a maintenance section consisting of 2 light trucks, a wrecker, a tank truck for reserve fuel and oil, automobiles for the officers and 2 motorcycles for runners. Each unit provides seats for an infantry battalion. The men volunteer their services and Greyhound furnishes the buses without charge to the Army for training.

In addition to the Motor Bus Reserve, buses are contributing to the war effort in many other ways; carrying military men to and from camps and bases, providing vital service to many war production plants. In fact, the motor bus is a tremendous new force for victory that grew up after World War I to serve the nation in peace and now is extending its vast facilities to serve the nation at war.

Five members of this grange are acting as neighborhood leaders and two are community leaders in charge of neighborhood leader groups in their precinct. Other subjects presented were on protein feeding for livestock and poultry, and the farm labor shortage. Rules for a writing contest for high school subjects were given.

A last call for sales slips for the past quarter was made by Jeanne Morton, chairman on home economics, and new rules for the birthday box were presented and accepted. Coffee will continue to be furnished by the group.

The body of Jalmer Anderson, aged about 60 years, a patient from Los Angeles at the veterans hospital at Roseburg, was found Sunday in the South Umpqua river. Anderson had been missing from the institution since March 12, when he failed to return after having been granted a 12-hour pass. Search had been made on the theory that he had purposely left the hospital to return to his home.

HIGHWAY AT WORK for Victory

The nation's highways, too, are doing their part for victory. In addition to the large volume of military traffic, the bus lines carried three-quarters of a billion passengers in 1942—nearly six times the population of the U. S. And still more are riding this year.

These millions are not traveling for scenery or pleasure. Most of them are selectees, military personnel, and war workers. Others are farmers, nurses, teachers—people in nearly every walk of life whose trips in some way or other are essential to the national welfare.

Greyhound is putting all its efforts, experience and resources into helping perform the biggest transportation job of all time. That is why our service to you now cannot always be what we would like to give, or what you have come to expect of Greyhound. We appreciate your patriotic consideration of these conditions created by the war.

But when victory is won, travelers will be rewarded. Then you can look to Greyhound for a brand-new chapter in comfortable, convenient, enjoyable highway transportation.

WARTIME TRAVEL SUGGESTIONS

You will help the war effort and have a better trip if you do these things:

1. Consult your Greyhound agent for information and get your ticket in advance.
2. Travel in mid-week rather than on week-ends.
3. Carry as little baggage as possible.
