Retained Spanish Influence

Columbus first set foot on Puerto Rico in 1493, landing near Aguadilla on the western end. From that time, through centuries of Spanish rule, Puerto Rico retained much of the influence of its mother land. Even after it became a territory of the United States, it lost little of this heritage and today's Puerto Rican is equally as proud of his native tongue as he is of his American citizenship.

Caution Urged in Preparing Pork

Persons who prepare pork products for human consumption should take every precaution to cook it properly so there will be no danger of trichinosis, warn officials of the state department of agriculture. Within recent months several residents have been victims of trichinosis and the warning is heightened by the death in recent weeks of three persons.

Too great emphasis cannot be placed upon the proper home curing of pork. Farmers and those feeding one or two hogs do not always cook the garbage for hogs, as is required in this state of commercial swine feeders. Eating uncooked offal, hogs often get into their systems the trichina infection or worm. While hogs apparently have become immune to this, the immunity is not passed to humans who partake of unsterilized pork containing the worm.

A microscopic worm so destructive that it causes undecipherable pain causes this disease, which may either kill or cause the partaker of improperly prepared pork to enter a stage of chronic invalidism, says Dr. W. H. Lytle, chief of the department's division of animal industry. The human body receives the disease trichinosis from infested pork that has been thoroughly sterilized. There is no known immediate cure for the severe muscle ailment which is a certain aftermath for those persons who survive trichinosis.

Symptoms of this disease are easily mistaken for intestinal influenza, colitis, appendicitis or food poisoning or the first stages of typhoid fever. Later there follows rheumatism, laryngitis, pneumonia pleurisy, myocarditis, encephalitis or other troubles, depending upon into which organ the parasitic worm burrows. Rules suggested to ward off trichinosis infection follow:

Cook all pork to the "well done" stage; that is, until it has lost its pinkish color.

Heat large thick cuts of pork for at least 30 minutes to the pound.

For sausage manufacture, use a meat thermometer inserted in the middle of the portion.

REDDY KILOWATT ELECTRIC SERVANT

Yes, Reddy Kilowatt is always at your fingertips. . . . around the clock on the job 24 hours a day ready to give you electric service when and where you need it as easy as flipping a switch. Here's the nice thing about it—war-time electric service. . . no rationing. . . no increase in price. The electric bill you receive today for the same amount of service you used before the war costs you no more. You say "How is this possible?" Here's how. . . electricity furnished under the free enterprise system. Planning years in advance of need by the men and women of the industry made it possible to furnish the large increased amount of electricity needed both for war work and civilian use at continued low prices. Nowhere else in the world was such a thing possible, all because of the free enterprise system that has allowed men to work unhampered for the things that spell Progress in America. All of us in this industry are proud of the part we have played in making it possible for America at home and at war to do what she is doing today for democracy.
