KING—MICKEY WIN 2 BALL FOUR SOME

At the usual golf club two-ball foursome, Merle King and Kenneth Mickey won the prize with a net score of 41½. Belle Burkholder and Earl Hill were runners-up with a net of 43½. After play and patluck dinner, all those present adjourned to inspect the new country home of Mrs. Merle King. She planned this herself with very pleasing results. The kitchen is thoroughly modern as is the rest of the house. A high-backed dutch chair unfolds into an ironing board, a ceiling light over the kitchen sink cleverly concealed behind a canopy and clouded glass gives plenty of light. The view from the hill where the house is located is quite pleasant. Mrs. King promises us refreshments the next time we call. Due to N. J. Nelson's absence at the foursome, we did not have so much "rough" trouble, and less time was consumed. In hunting lost balls. The women met on Wednesday nites for their play. Potluck is not served at the course, but play begins at 6:00 p. m. All women who play or wish to learn are welcome.

Glass Wicks

A glass wick from the bottom of a flat or pot of vegetable or flower seedlings to a pan of water supplies a uniform and optimum quantity of water with the minimum of attention. Although glass wicks can be used for many years, a cloth wick (the last one season) can be substituted.
