'Private Hargrove' Funniest Picture

"See Here, Private Hargrove," the hilarious best-seller based on Army life, has been made into one of the funniest screen comedies of the year. In the film, which opens at the Arcade Theatre, a group of young players make sure-fire bids for stardom.

These include young Robert Walker who embarked on his screen career as the sailor in "Bataan," in the title role of the hapless Hargrove, and lovely Donna Reed, whose most recent appearances were in "The Man from Down Under" and "The Human Comedy," is cast as Hargrove's sweetheart. True to the Army, he meets her while she is working in a canteen at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Keenan Wynn, last seen as the gangster in "Lost Angel," is Private Mulvehill, and Donald Curtis plays the sergeant who takes Hargrove in hand—and almost takes on more trouble than he can handle. "Bill" Phillips and George Offerman, Jr., have their greatest opportunity so far.

Regulars in the cast include Robert Benchley, Chik Wills, Grant Mitchell, Douglas Fowley and Marta Linden. Wesley Ruggles directed and George Haight produced.
