

Laura a Mystery Thriller Due 28th

Just how does a mustered-out serviceman feel when he tries on a pair of civies from his pre-war wardrobe?

Dana Andrews, fresh from his uniformed roles in 20th Century-Fox's thrilling "Wing and A Prayer" and "The Purple Heart," was "mustered-out" by the studio for an entirely different type of role in its new sophisticated mystery-thriller, "Laura," which is scheduled to open January 28th at the Arcade Theatre. Starred in the film with Andrews are Gene Tierney and Clifton Webb, while Vincent Price and Judith Anderson head the featured cast.

Whatever relief or elation Andrews may have felt over the change in characterization was sharply minimized, however, by the immediate demands of the role for an up to the minute civilian wardrobe.

"I got a pretty good idea of how an ex-soldier must feel when it comes to donning civies again. I had to go out and buy six expensive suits together with shirts and knickknacks of haberdashery to complement them for my role as a smartly dressed detective who mingles in cafe society."

Thus, in "Laura," the suspenseful story of a strange and dangerous experiment in love and murder, Andrews just misses wearing a uniform by a grade.

The film was produced and directed by Otto Preminger. Jay Dratler, Samuel Hoffenstein and Betty Reinhardt wrote the screen play based on Vera Caspary's best-selling novel.

Washington Letter

By Harris Ellsworth, Rep. in Congress from Oregon

PRESIDENT'S HEALTH. Rumors to the effect that the President is a sick man were rampant during the campaign and have been rather prevalent since. Last week, I had an opportunity to observe the President at rather close range. I attended a banquet at which he was present. I can report to you that his color was good—the color and complexion of a healthy man, he was obviously vigorous, he sat at the table three hours, enjoyed the entertainment, laughed frequently, chatted with those seated near him, and although he did not make a formal speech, he twice took the microphone at the speaker's table and made amusing comments. His voice was the same strong voice that has always charmed radio listeners.

MANPOWER. Selective Service head, General Hershey, this week appeared before a rather unofficial committee of House members and was questioned regarding the new order to induct men from farms. I sat through most of the meeting. A summary of the information obtained can be briefly stated as follows:

The armed services have notified Selective Service that more men are needed. Available sources for the requirement are limited. Under the Selective Service law, local draft boards have wide authority. Selective Service officials request local boards to make inductions and reclassifications that are not required by law, but with the wide latitude given local boards in the law, such requests from Selective Service headquarters may be complied with. Accordingly, local boards may use their best judgment in reclassifying and inducting farm labor or any other deferred men, subject, of course, to the provisions of the Tydings Amendment, designed to protect essential agricultural workers. Under this amendment, farm workers under 26 are to be kept on the farm, if: (1) They are necessary to agricultural production; (2) They are regularly engaged in it; (3) Their occupations are essential to the war effort—that is, that they are engaged in producing food that is marketed; (4) That they cannot be replaced on the farms.

FLAGS. Parents or next of kin of men in the service who were killed in action on foreign soil, and are buried there, are entitled to receive a large American flag (the flag is 5 feet by 9½ feet in size) from the government. Such parents or next of kin who have not yet received a flag may have one by making proper application and presenting proof of death.

Application blanks (Veterans Administration Form 2008) may be obtained from any Veterans Administration facility, from any county seat post office, and, in the Fourth Congressional District, in addition to the county seat post offices, from post offices at Ashland, Brownsville, Cottage Grove, Coos Bay, North Bend, Port Orford and Reedsport. These flags are now available at the post offices and may be obtained when the applicant is filed. I shall be glad to mail anyone an application blank upon request.

16,000 Army, Navy Men Loaned Industry

A high government official said Friday that the army and navy have lent some 16,000 men capable of combat duty to fill labor gaps in critical war production.

These men, adding up to more than a full division of troops, went from uniforms to overalls to work on such items as tires, copper and foundry products.

The official, who could not be quoted by name, characterized the present production situation as akin to that in 1942 when the nation was straining at every seam to boost the flow of munitions to the war zone.

There is contention in congress that the need for war workers can be met on a voluntary rather than compulsory basis.

But a resurvey of manpower requirements was reported to have prompted President Roosevelt to ask legislators Wednesday to speed enactment of a pending bill to make deferred draft registrants from 18 to 25 subject to penalties if they refuse to accept essential jobs. Roosevelt had said previously he didn't think the voluntary methods would work.

Mosby Creek

Mr. and Mrs. George Allman of Silk Creek have moved into the small house on the Lee Dugan place near Walden.

Mrs. Berta McGuire and children, Melvin and Russell of Walden and Mrs. Harry Castle and grandson, Larry Lancaster, were guests Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Geo. Foster at Thornton Corners. They helped tie out a quilt.

Thomas Antrim of San Francisco was a guest last week at the Glenn Roby home at Blue Mt. Several men were stringing new telephone wire Sunday getting ready to put in a double circuit line.

Mrs. Berta McGuire and children were dinner guests Saturday night at the Harry Castle home in honor of Larry Lancaster's third birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Hocker has been quite ill at her home at Blue Mt., but is some better at the last report.

Earl Elliot, who has been in the army in the south Pacific, has returned home with a medical discharge.

Sgt. Clifford Eastburn, who has spent the last year in England, is now in the United States and is going to a gunnery school in Texas.
