

Another Great Role For Spencer Tracy

In the greatest role of a living man Spencer Tracy has played since his Academy Award-winning Father Flanagan in "Boys Town," he portrays Lieutenant Colonel now Lieutenant General, James H. Doolittle, who planned and executed the famous Tokyo raid, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," which opens June 17 at the Arcade Theatre, with Van Johnson, Robert Walker and Phyllis Thaxter.

An inspired leader, who had the complete respect and confidence of the young Army fliers under his command, General Doolittle is also a man with a warm and understanding heart. It was General Doolittle who told Major Ted W. Lawson that there would always be a place for him in the Army Air Forces and arranged the reunion of Lawson and his wife, Ellen.

Engaged in the double job of boosting war bond sales while delivering wartime freight, a decorated truck of the Pacific Motor Trucking Company visited Cottage Grove this week. Its assistance to the local war bond committee was offered by J. E. Skofstad, northern district manager for the trucking company.

Painted red-white-and-blue and carrying the patriotic appeal, "Buy Another War Bond Today," the truck is on a tour of western and central Oregon to stimulate bond sales while doing its regular job of store-door pickup and delivery of freight hauled by Southern Pacific trains, explained C. ## Telephones Planned For Million Farm Families in Post-War

An expanded program of the Bell Telephone system to take rural telephone service to a million additional farms after the war is outlined by John J. Hanselman, head of the commercial department of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, and Harold S. Osborne, chief engineer, in the Bell Telephone magazine just issued.

The proposed expansion will about double the present number of Bell system telephones in rural areas. Even with new economies in construction, it is expected to cost about $100,000,000.

Surveys necessary to further expansion already are being made. The writers estimate that from three to five years will be needed after men and materials again are available before a million more farm telephones can be installed as planned.

It is expected that many of the Bell System people now in the army and navy can be assigned to this program after they return from military service.

Estimates indicate that 80 per cent of all rural families are located either along existing pole lines or near enough to them so that service can be installed without a special construction charge. A big part of the Farm Telephone Program, therefore, is to make the advantages of telephone service more fully understood by these families.

For reaching the 20 per cent of farm families that now are distant from pole lines, new techniques will be available.

To extend lines, for instance, high-strength steel wire will permit longer distances between poles, so that only about half as many poles will be needed as formerly. Also, more use will be made of insulated wire put underground with a special plow.

For farmers who have electric service, but are remote from existing telephone lines, transmission of telephone conversations over power wires is a possibility. The Bell telephone laboratories and the System Companies are co-operating with the Rural Electric

Administration and with private power companies in working out the application of this method.

And as soon as the war permits, the Bell System will undertake further studies in the use of short-wave radio to reach remote spots. It has already requested the Federal Communications Commission to make available frequency allocations for this purpose.

Dad has favorite dishes

And Father's Day is an excellent time to serve them... to prove all over again that you love him. So forget the calories and vitamins for a day and give him those things he likes... just because they taste so good, such as:

For breakfast—CORN PANCAKES
1/2 cup all-purpose flour 2 eggs
1/2 cup corn meal 2 eggs
1/2 tsp. baking powder 2 cups milk
1/4 tsp. soda 2 tbsps. melted margarine

Sift flour, measure, and sift again with corn meal, baking powder, soda, sugar, and salt. Beat egg yolks, add milk and combine with dry ingredients, beating until smooth. Add melted butter or margarine and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Drop by tablespoonfuls on moderately hot, lightly greased griddle or heavy frying pan. Turn cakes when bubbles form on top surface. Bake until golden brown. Serve with equal amounts of melted butter or margarine and heated syrup. Makes 10 to 12 medium-size cakes.

For his favorite dinner—Chicken Fricassee or Beef Stew with Dumplings.
DUMPLING QUICKIE
2 cups biscuit mix 1 cup milk
Place mix in bowl, add milk all at once; stir until all of the flour is dampened. Drop dumplings by tablespoonfuls on gently boiling stew or liquid in large kettle with tight-fitting cover; cover; steam 15 minutes or until done, without removing cover. Makes 12 medium-size dumplings.
