Mail Christmas Packages Now To Overseas Personnel

Navy postal authorities urge immediate mailing of parcels to navy, marine corps, and coast guard personnel in order to insure delivery by Christmas.

Four main points in sending gift packages are: select wisely, wrap securely, mail early and address correctly.

The wisest procedure is to ask the serviceman what he wants. The men usually want pictures, canned luxury foods, books, service watches, pipes, pens, engraved identification tags, waterproof wallets and cigarette lighters. Women want pictures, books, play clothes and stockings.

In the actual process of mailing, the sender should use a strong box and pack in paper or some type of filler. Inside each package, the sender should place a list enumerating the articles sent, full name and address of the serviceman, and his own name and return address. The box should be tied with a heavy string and then wrapped in heavy paper and tied with a cord.

Packages must not exceed five pounds in weight, 15 inches in length, or 36 inches in length and girth combined. Also all packages containing articles of value should be insured.

If the sender desires packages may be marked "Abandon if Undeliverable." Before mailing, the sender should check the address for full name, rank, or rate, name of ship or name of activity. The navy number should be written out. The correct fleet post office should be given, too.
