Cottage Grove, Oregon

The forest at the left is at your mercy. Toss a burning cigarette out your car window and you may reduce this land to the unproductive waste at the right.

Careless smokers cause a quarter of our forest fires. They are responsible for approximately 20,000 forest fires a year. Such thoughtlessness can easily nullify long years of effort to produce new forests.

America's very security depends upon the productive capacity of our forest lands. Keeping Oregon Green means more than keeping Oregon beautiful. For the products of forests are as essential in war as guns, as necessary in peace as bread. Help keep Oregon's forests growing by remembering to put out your cigarettes before you throw them away.
