Check Fungus

Sunshine and good ventilation are the two best preventive measures for mildew, a fungus growth that thrives in damp, poorly ventilated and dark locations. Starting the furnace is a good way to dry out the house and get rid of mildew.

Mineral Absorption
Scientists studying perosis, a bone disease in poultry due to a deficiency of manganese in food, found that if calcium or phosphorus is added to a diet, normally sufficient in manganese, the chickens developed perosis. This was due to an absorption of manganese by calcium phosphate which put the manganese in a form which the body could not use.

Hog Cholera
August, September and October are the danger periods for hog cholera. Hogs should be immunized from cholera before the disease becomes epidemic in a community.

Import Rice
Second only to China as the world's largest rice producer, India normally is nevertheless the world's largest rice importer. In prewar days nearly 80 per cent of India's rice imports came from Burma.
