Prime Favorite

Muskkrat, or "marsh rabbit" as it is sometimes called, was a prime favorite, especially in winter, with the aborigines of North America. Countless numbers of voyageurs, trappers, and hunters have roasted it over the coals of the camp fire. Traders and Indians dried the meat for winter food.

The first obituary in Oregon's first newspaper, was a long sketch of Reverend Jason Lee, pioneer missionary, who died 11 months before.

Girl Scouts Now Number 85 Here

This troop is divided into three patrols under the leaders, Dixie Eastburn, Barbara Hunter and Carolyn Crane.

Troop No. 52 will meet in the Methodist church on Thursday from now on, instead of the Presbyterian church. The newly elected patrol leaders of these sixth grade girls are Marilyn Groat and Shirley Witters with Elaine Radway as secretary and Diane Davies as treasurer of the troop. Stressing "Active Citizenship Around the World," the Girl Scout theme for 1946, the girls are making Friendship Bags to be sent overseas.

These filled bags will be sent to girls in war devastated countries where such notions are a luxury. Arrangements have been made for delivery in the following countries: Belgium, Czechoslovakia, France, Greece, Holland, Norway, Luxembourg, Lithuania, Poland and Russia. The girls from Cottage Grove will choose the country to which they would like their bags to go and the country receiving the most votes will receive the entire lot from Eugene-Lane County Girl Scout Council. In the meantime the girls hope to learn about the country to which they want their bags to go. Anyone interested in contributing articles in the bags is welcome to do so.

Mrs. Carl Groat and Mrs. J. Lee McDonald are leaders of Troop No. 50. Sponsoring group is the American Legion auxiliary with Mrs. Dale Gates, Mrs. George Witters, Mrs. P. S. Bukowski and Mrs. Max Bird as troop committee members.

Troop No. 94, fifth graders, is led by Mrs. Hadley Arthur and Mrs. John Long and meets in the Methodist church Tuesday afternoon. Sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's club these girls are busy working toward their Second Class Badge. There are two patrols with Kay Leonard and Eloise Crosby as leaders and Rose Miller and Rosemary Rickard as secretaries. Sixteen girls were invested in this troop recently at a ceremony to which mothers were invited. A troop committee meeting was held last week at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Frank Miller, to make plans for the spring months. Troop committee members are: Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Mary Burnett, Mrs. Carolyn Hunt and Mrs. Adelia Hatch.

All three troops sold Girl Scout calendars at Christmas time as their one money making project during the year. The balance of the treasury is made up of the monthly dues. All three troops contributed to the infantile paralysis fund.

The organization and progress of Girl Scouting results not only from the efforts of the girls but from the adult leadership and backing. Since this is essential it is hoped anyone interested in contributing some time and effort to Girl Scouts, will not hesitate to do so.
