O. Wicks. The mothers were given a floral degree by the officers and each was presented with a gift. Mrs. Olson was the house guest of Mrs. Hayes during the time she was in Creswell.

Animals That Use Grain Reduced in State Below Goal

Oregon poultrymen and livestock raisers have not only met but greatly exceeded the government goals for reduction in grain-consuming animals this year, according to figures compiled by agriculture officials at Oregon State college. The information was gathered in response to inquiries following publication of statements that the poultry industry had not carried out the suggested reductions.

Oregon's chicken population is now estimated at no greater than a year ago, while reports from hatcheries not yet reflected in government estimates indicate at least a 25 percent reduction in late hatched chickens raised.

TUESDAY BRIDGE FINAL MEETING

INFORMAL PARTY

METHODIST MISSIONARY GROUP

Though chicken numbers on January 1 were up 6.3 percent over one year earlier, egg production in April was just equal to that of April 1945, while heavier than normal culling indicated that egg production for the year would be under the government's Oregon goal of 95 percent of the 1945 output.

The other half of the Oregon poultry industry has already gone far beyond suggested goal reductions with the special May 1 turkey report listing an estimate of 35 percent reduction in Oregon compared with a goal of 15 percent cut in turkeys raised, and compared with an estimated national reduction of 15 percent.

Dairy cows and hogs, the other principal users of grain feed in Oregon, have also been materially reduced. Dairy cow numbers were down 8 percent January 1 and milk production was down 6 percent in April despite a goal of full production. Hog numbers on the same date were down 4 percent from last year and were 32 percent below the previous 10-year average.

These goal productions have been met or exceeded in Oregon despite the fact that population growth of the Pacific coast states is 27 percent above prewar, the O. S. C. officials add.

Animals not so dependent on grain have also been reduced, with sheep numbers down 15 percent from last year and 50 percent under the 10-year average. Cattle and horse numbers are also lower this year.

Notice to Water Users

In order to conserve water, the winter rates (6000 gallons for the minimum fee, $1.75) will be in effect during the summer months or until a dependable auxiliary supply is available.

In previous years an irrigation rate has encouraged waste which cannot be tolerated under present conditions. With proper cooperation the present supply will be adequate to supply the household needs and fire protection.
