POOR PROPHETS

A year ago economists were telling us about how many new things we might expect within the next few months like new autos, new refrigerators and a hundred and one things the public had waited more than four years for. Instead of seeing at least a partial part of the prophecy fulfilled we now have bread lines, meat lines, nail lines, paint lines and a lot of things we'd hoped for have completely disappeared from the market. Looking back we'd say we have hardly made a start toward reversion.

In the meantime we have joined the spiral of inflation where labor wants better wages and industry wants more profit. If one group gets an increase or more profit, some other organization immediately wants a price boost so that everything will be equalized and up go prices again. The whole trouble seems to be that we are inclined to view the outlook from a selfish standpoint without taking the rights of others into consideration or how what we may want will affect our neighbor.

When the president stepped in not long ago and stopped the railroad strike which paralyzed the nation, his opponents charged that his methods were dictatorial. The government stopped the strike by taking over the railroads, just what a lot of people had been previously advocating, even a number of workers themselves.

We all agree that strikes have caused the present industrial bottleneck and will probably privately agree that some drastic action is necessary before we can get production back to normal but nobody wants to take the drastic step, least of all the politicians. Even our own senator Morse who has done a lot of talking has not come up with anything worthy of mention to bring about industrial peace. But that's what we need now, not a year from now.

INVESTIGATE AND THEN BUILD

We are glad to see the amount of building activity underway here at the present time, but in a good many instances the headache of obtaining materials won't be the last the home owner will have. Unfortunately Cottage Grove does not have a sufficient number of through streets and alleys to make the proper access to the needed thoroughfares and the same will probably apply to the adjacent sections which are undergoing about the same amount of building activity.

Within a few months we fear that some sections of the city and the surrounding rural areas will wake up to the fact that a traffic bottleneck has been developed, which will be hard to correct.

Most of us want and demand modern conveniences that the utilities will bring, but there must be a right of way provided for these utilities, which is lacking if there are no alleys. For instance how will the city serve the property owners with telephones, electric lights, water or gas, if there are no public alleys in which to build these utilities. These are some of the problems which are now facing us that many new home owners may not be aware of.

Without designated streets or alleys, we can't see how any contemplated street program can go very far. Nobody wants to live in a mud hole and that's what we have during the winter months if on an unimproved street.

COUNTRY PRESS AND INFLATION

The Industrial News Review recently sent a questionnaire to the editors of the country weekly, smaller city daily and suburban and neighborhood papers in large cities throughout the 48 states, asking their opinion on the following statements, and inviting comment:

1. I do not believe we can continue or expand present government economic controls and retain personal freedom and our representative form of government.

I believe we can continue or even expand present government economic controls and retain our personal freedom and representative form of government.

3. I would rather risk inflation and hardship than submit to rigid government dictation over myself and family.

4. I would rather submit to rigid government dictation over myself and family than risk inflation and hardship.

Out of the first 500 replies, approximately 90 percent marked items one and three. Nearly all the editors answering made highly illuminating remarks as to why they preferred to risk inflation than submit to government dictation. In general, their opinions can be summed up by the statement of Editor Welty, Bartlesville, Okla., Examiner-Enterprise. He said:

"There can be no half-way measures. Either we shall go farther down the road to state socialism or turn back. The natural forces of nature, of supply and demand and all the other homely two-and-two-make-four fundamentals must return of else we shall simply consume ourselves with regimentation, failure, and finally collapse. We must work as individuals, save as individuals and recognize our personal responsibilities as individuals or else become more monkeys on the end of a Christmas toy."

A very small percentage of the replies which thought that controls might be maintained for a limited period to prevent greater inflation, are illustrated by Editor Rossman of the San Francisco, California, Labor Herald, who said in part:

"Controls of the right sort can curb inflation and hardship without 'rigid government dictation' over the individual, as such. It is precisely inflation and resultant depression which could undermine American representative democracy and set this nation on the road traveled by Germany and Italy, not wise and effective government controls."

The 90 percent of the editors who favored taking their chances with inflation rather than dictatorial controls, largely based their decisions on the belief that continued bureaucratic controls were not a guarantee against inflation, whereas they were almost a sure guarantee of making the people dependent on government, and destroying private enterprise and individual opportunity as we have known it in the United States.

Divorce Grounds

Using cosmetics before marriage was grounds for divorce in colonial Pennsylvania. A statute in 1770 stated that a marriage could be annulled if it could be proved that the lady had used cosmetics during courtship.

Cover Bedsprings

A cover for the bedsprings will prevent sheets from being torn, and will keep dust away from the springs.

Cold Welding

The life of welding tips has been lengthened greatly by the use of "cold" welding in which water chilled by mechanical refrigeration is supplied to intensely hot welding tips so that a worker can make as many as 800 welds with one tip instead of 30 or 40 before it is necessary to clean or change the tip.

Island Is Born

The Mediterranean floor near the island of Pantelleria pushed up 600 feet to break the surface in 1831 and build 200-foot-high Graham's island, which was reduced in a few months to a black sand bar. In 1811, Sabrina island rose 300 feet high off St. Michael in the Azores, soon vanished, repeating similar performances there in 1691 and 1720.

THOUGHTLETS

By Carl B. Balch

If California is pointing the way, the C. I. O. Political Action committee is not to rule this country.

Education is not essential to intelligence, but how far will education go without intelligence?

If you are not interested in people, people will not be interested in you.

When it seems to us that the world is all awry, it is well to remember that Christians are a minority.

MEDICAL MEN ACKNOWLEDGE SOUNDNESS OF CHIROPRACTIC

The case for chiropractic has been proved in the literature of medicine itself. Painsstaking library research has brought to light confirmation of every aspect of chiropractic teachings. In a number of instances actual mention of chiropractic is made. We quote a few examples.

In a book published in Paris in 1929 by Dr. R. F. Allendy entitled Orientation des Idees Medicales, we find this statement: "It is possible that a slight irregularity in the disposition of the vertebrae by 'strangling' certain spinal nerves at their exit from the spine, can have considerable organic effects, as the chiropractic school maintains."

Dr. James Brailsford in 1929 (British Journal of Surgery) stated: "It is quite easy to replace the vertebrae with a moderate amount of manipulation, and... many patients find relief in the hands of chiropractors." More outspoken is Dr. H. B. Gotten (Journal of Tennessee Medical Association), who, in discussing the internist's problem of low back pain says: "It is better that the chiropractor treat these patients than to have them treated by a physician who thinks only in terms of surgery."

As long ago as 1918 Therapeutic Review published an article by Dr. E. M. King entitled: Why Chiropractors should be recognized by the Medical Profession. In this article he argues as follows:

"There was a time when I looked at chiropractic through a pair of bifocal lenses, the upper plus prejudice, the lower plus lack of investigation. But because medicine with all its adjuncts had failed to reach the complicated ailments of my own invalid wife, I like a drowning man, grasped for anything in sight. I soon saw that the theory that the chiropractors were working on was plausible and met the approval of common sense. All this opened up a new field of thought to me which had never been presented through the study of medicine. The sooner the medical profession recognizes the work of the chiropractor, the better. He is doing a work that medicine cannot do; he belongs exclusively to the class of specialists and should be recognized."

Dr. Adolph Lorenz, son of the world-famous Viennese surgeon, wrote in the Wiener Klinische Wochenschrift:

"The science of chiropractic, as the name implies, consists of certain manipulations of the hands (adjustments) on the body. When it is applied to orthopedic conditions, chiropractic is a blessed substitute for the usual reparatory method. The American orthopedists belittle the good results which the patients obtain from those practitioners whom they call 'quacks,' although they know nothing of chiropractic."

A Small Business

Like Mine
Helps Make America Great

ONE OF THOUSANDS OF INDEPENDENT MOBILGAS BUSINESS MEN

Al Hoffarber established his highly successful Mobilgas station in Tigard, Ore., in 1926. That he has been a business success is attested by the fact that he owns his home in Tigard, a 20-acre filbert farm on Bull Mountain, a ranch at Greenburg, an additional business property in Tigard and a small ranch nearby for his prized horses and dogs. He is married, has one son, and for years has been a member of the Clackamas County Sheriff's posse.

I may not have the biggest payroll in town, but my Mobilgas station pays off big in driving satisfaction to a lot of people who come to me for Mobilgas, Mobiloil and the best car care service I can give them.

You see, I'm in business for myself and independently set up to give the kind of service that will make my business grow. I realize that I can protect what I have at stake only as I please you and bring you back... and that's important in these times when good, dependable labor is in such demand.

The same is true wherever you see the sign of the Flying Red Horse, for Mobilgas stations are independently operated by small business men like myself. When you use Mobilgas and Mobiloil, you not only get top flight motor fuel and lubricants, but courteous and conscientious car care service.
